SURROUNDED BY HIS FAMILY.

The Man Whose Sway Has Been Felt Through the World Passes Away.

SOMETHING OF HIS WONDERFUL CAREER

New York, December 2 .- (Special.)-Jay Gould died at 9:15 o'clock this morning The news was unknown outside of the house of the millionaire for half an hour after. The first authentic verbal news of the event came from the colored butler, who, responding to inquiries, verified

Mr. Gould died surrounded by the members of his family and the physicians. All day yesterday contradictory reports about his condition were circulated, but late in the evening it was acknowledged that he

At 1 o'clock this morning he seemed to ally and the family retired; but at day light his condition was more alarming and the family again assembled at the bed ide. It was apparent that the end was par and Mr. Gould seemed to realize it.

a Photograph Taken Just Before He Visited Atlanta.

The end came peacefully and quietly. Just before death, Mr. Goold, realizing is approach, expressed a desire to see the metibers of the family. He was conscious and entirely composed, meeting the end with calmness, which to the last was onstrated by the fact that he missed the face of one member of the family who had left the room for a moment Mr. Gould's last words were in the form of a request that he might, at the closing moment of his life, be surrounded by the beloved members of his family. He leaves four sons—George, Edwin, Howard and Frank, and one daughter, Helen. Mrs. Gould died some two years ago.

At the Deathbed.

The members of the family present at the death of Mr. Gould included Mr. and Mrs. George Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould, Miss Helen Gould, Mr Howard Gould and Miss Anna Gould. The servants were informed of the death immediately after its occurrence.

The physicians assert definitely the nature of the recent illness-as it was generally believed—to have been pulmohary consumption. It is said that he had several hemorrhages recently, the first occurring the day before Thanksgiving, and another a few days later, with still another a few days ago. The sufferer was bravely grateful for all that was done for him.

The funeral will occur Monday. The services will be simple and unostentatious in accordance with the wishes of the de-ceased. The services will be held at the family mansion and conducted by Dr. John R. Paxton, assisted by Chancellor McCracken and Rev. Mr. Roderick Terry. The interment will be at Irvington, on the Hudson, where the body of Mrs. Gould reposes.

His First Sign of Weakness The real condition of Mr. Gould's health was not realized until a year ago, when se broke down in the famous Missouri-Pacific meeting. This occurred in November, 1891. The Missouri Pacific railroad was Mr. Gould's pride. He had built it up and had made it a dividend-paying oad. He was very jealous of the reputation which the Vanderbilt roads enjoyed, and always pointed to the Missouri Pacific when he was charged with being a rail-

The Gould boys at the time were reported to be heavily "short" of the market. The great bull movement based on the earnings of the Missouri Pacific was in progress, and both Mr. Gould and his son George favored the passing of a dividend, According to reports at the time, Russell Sage, who was "long" of the market, was violently opposed to the move. S. S. Sloan, the conservative president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, and also a director of the Missouri Pacific, was opposed to the step. The debate between George Gould and Russell Sage grew into a heated altercation. Jay Gould broke down and, it was said, actually wept. He fainted away and showed itution to be broken. His Broken Vitality Evident.

The dividend was passed, however, and the bull movement restored. This action was first charged to the manipulation of the market, so the Goulds could cover their shorts; but when the facts were made known Wall street at last realized that Jay Gould had nearly run his course. Last summer Mr. Gould broke down again at a directors' meeting. He was said to be consumptive. His sons said that he was suffering from a bronchial affection. In his private car he went to the southwest and lived there for three months. He returned to New York in time for the Manhattan Elevated and Western Union Manhattan Elevated and Western Union annual meeting in September. He moved and acted like a man eighty years old, bent with the years of life.

The Western Union was about to issue a stock dividend for the $13,000,000 surplus in its treasury and the financier could not keep away from the scenes of his triumph. He had a number of schemes relative to the Western Union and Man-hattan in his mind, but nature asserted its sway, and they were deferred until his brain could resume its accustomed or four weeks has transacted the principal portion of his business at his house, only making a few scattering and brief ily hoped that he would recover as usual, but the attack last Wednesday dissipated such hopes. Mr. Gould, at the time of his death, was fifty-six years of age.

His Early Life. Mr. Gould was born at Roxbury, Delaware county, New York, May 27, 1836. His early years were spent at his father's farm. At the age of fourteen years, he entered Hobart academy, and kept the books of the village blacksmith. He acquired a taste for surveying, mathematics, and during the summer of 1853 completed a survey of Albany county, and surveyed and mapped the village of Cohoes, following it with other work. He accumulated $5,000 from these surveys. When but twenty years old, Mr. Gould published a history of Delaware county, and, while projecting other surveys, was prostrated by typhoid fever. On recovery, he became acquainted with Zadock Pratt, who sent him into the western part of the state to select a site for a tannery. He chose a fine hemlock, erected a saw mill and blacksmith shop, and, with Mr. Pratt, was soon doing a large lumbering business. Subsequently he bought out Pratt's interest, and conducted the business alone till just before the panic of 1857, when he sold out his entire plant.

He became the largest stockholder and director in the Stroudsburg, Pa., bank. Soon afterwards he became interested in railroads, and put all his money into railroad securities. Mr. Gould was born at Roxbury, Dela-

His enterprises widened, and he purchased heavy of stocks of the greatest railronds of In 1879 he organized the American Union

In 1879 he organized the American Union telegraph, afterwards merged into the Western Union Telegraph Company. In 1881 he became interested in the elevated railroad system in this city. Doubt having been cast upon his financial standing, he summoned several gentlemen to his private office in March, 1882, and spread before them certificates of stock having a face value of $53,000,000, and offered to produce $20,000,000 more if desired.

Mr. Gould's career since he began to operate, the Wall street, the public are well informed. Speculations in Eric, the "Black Friday," and other episodes are familiar. From the time he entered Wall street he forged straight shead. Line after line of railroad fell under his control. With a single move in the stock market he could affect financial matters not only in every city in this country but in London, Paris and Vienna as well. He turned his attention to the telegraphic system of the country and secured a monopoly of that, controlling the Atlantic cable as well. Crowning he profits with possession of the elevated railroad system of New York.

Area Nothing for Society.

Mr. Gould married young and was always domestic in habit. He cared nothing for society and paid little attention to it. In the main he lived plainer than many men whose incomes are less than $10,000 a year. He was not what some would call religious, but he kept a pew. He was never robust except as to will and brains.

The most conservative estimates place his fortune at about $60,000,000. Of late years this fortune has increased rapidly owing to his enormous income from his holdings of Western Union and Manhattan stock and bond investments, and the income from these three sources alone cannot have failer under $3,000,000, and probably exceeded that.

The Great Erie Deal.

The Great Erie Deal.

Mr. Gould engaged in his first railway enterprise in 1857, when he bought the bonds of the Rutland and Washington railroad at 10 cents on the $1. He says he bought them with borrowed money; and, that he finally took charge of the road. He sold out afterward at a fair profit, but the purchasers found that they had got very little for their money. About this time, Mr. Gould married and came to New York to live. The Erie deal originated in a war between Drew and Commodore Vanderblit. The later had obtained control of the Harlem and Hudson River roads in addition to the Albany line of steamboats and wanted to get hold of the Erie. He bought at every opportunity. Drew, Fisk and Gould laid plans to defeat him, Gould engineering the scheme. Finally an issue Continued on Second Column Second Page.

SOME INTERESTING PENSION FIGURES. Talk of Culberson for the Cabinet-Allen Candler for Assistant Secretaryof

the Interior-Other News

Washington, Dccember 2.—(Special.)— The Washington Post has a double-leaded editorial this morning calling upon this congress to pass a law providing for the next congress to meet on the first Monday after the first of March. It declares this congress can pass such a law under the contitution, which says: "The congress shall assemble which says: "The congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December—'unless they shall by law appoint a different day." This, The Post says, would relieve the president of calling the session and would enable congress to promptly repond to the will of its constituents.

The suggestion, however, does not meet with any great degree of favor, it being held by many that one congress cannot fix a day for the meeting of the next. The constitu-tional provision quoted above, they hold, means that a particular congress can fix its date for meeting, but it cannot fix the date for another except by amending the constitution. That is, after organization, a congress can fix any date for its next meeting, but unless called in session by the president there is no means by which it can meet until December. However, that may be, it is believed Mr. Cleveland will call an extra

Culberson for the Cabinet. It is a little early for anything definite about Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, and, indeed it will be several weeks yet before Mr. Cleveland makes any selections. It bes Cleveland makes any selections. It has been decided, however, that the south will certainly get one cabinet office, and perhaps two.

The attorney generalship may go south, and it is highly probable that the Lone Star State will get it. Judge David B. Culberson, of that state, who has served twenty years in congress, and for several years has been chairman of the judiciary committee of the house, seems to have been fixed upon by his colleagues, and all the leaders of the party, as the man Mr. Cleveland will select for that portfolio.

Judge Culberson is looked upon as the ablest lawyer in congress. His advice on legal matters is always soaght by his colleagues, and his influence in the house is equaled by but few. Already a petition is in circulation among the members here, requesting Mr. Cleveland to tender him the attractors are accordingly to the manufacture of the power to supply all information required by them.

It is understood a proposition will soon be made by the finance committee to reorganize the Georgia Central company by issuing new bonds at a lower rate of interest with the object in view to protect the stock and junior securities of the company. attorney generalship. It will probably be signed by every democratic member of the house and by all the democratic senators. Mr. Cleveland himself has great confidence in Mr. Culberson's legal ability, and per-

In view of all the pressure which will be brought to bear upon Mr. Cleveland, of the recognized ability of Mr. Culberson, and under the advice of his closest political friends, it seems entirely probable that Mr. land's political family.

was born in Troup county in 1830, and was educated at the old Brownwood college at LaGrange. He studied law under Chief Justice Chilton, of Alabama, before removing to Texas in 1856. In 1859 he was elected the Texas legislature. He served in the confederate army, and was colonel of the Eighteenth Texas infantry. He was first elected to congress about twenty years ago, and has served continually since.

The Silver Question.

One of the most important questions to be considered at this session of congress is silver. It is not considered possible that a free-coinage bill can be passed, and, indeed, it is not probable that any decided effort will be made to this end. It is, however, thought necessary to repeal the Sherman act, which even Senator Sherman himself acknowledged was a mistake. It would not do to repeal that act without enacting other legislation providing for the coinage of silver, but just what can be passed and what the president will sign no one seems to know at present.

It is said that shortly after congress meets, Senator Sherman will make a state-ment to the senate that the existing law which bears his name is a failure, and that he will offer another measure for adoption in its place, but just what that will be no one seems to know at present.

All legislation effecting silver may be post-poned to await the result of the international conference, now in session, but something will have to be done between now and the

The Pension Outlook

Commissioner of Pensions Raum in a report issued a few days ago asks congress to appropriate $165,000,000 for the payment to appropriate $165,000,000 for the payment of pensions next year. And he adds that it would probably take considerable more than this to pay them all.

The chances are that it will take $200,000,000 to pay the pensions that will be on the rolls at the end of the present year. Under the dependent pension bill passed by the Reed congress, 200,000 new names have been added to the pension list and the amount paid out was increased under this bill $76,000,000.

The newsion office is news invested.

The pension office is now increasing the pension list at the rate of nearly 1,000 per day and there are yet nearly a million ap-plications for pensions that have not been plications for pensions that have not been acted upon.

Already there are more names on the pension list than the total number of soldiers in the union army. Instead of dying off they are increasing by the thousands. Unless something is done to stop the fraudulent issuing of pensions, within two of three years it will take from $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 annually.

General Garfield, when a member of the house, said in a speech that the pension list could never be increased to exceed $30,000,000 annually. That, he said would allow a pension to every man injur-in the service of the United States gov-ment. Now, however, there are thous-ds upon thousands of men on the pension is who never heard a gun fire during the told to the transfer of the telephone of telephone of the telephone of the telephone of the telephone of telephone of the telephone of telephone of the telephone of telephone o

war. It has been made a republican vote-buring machine.

The democrats realize that something will have to be done to cut the list down and leave only actual soldiers and their widows upon the pension list.

If all the fraudnent pensioners now drawing pensions were removed from the list the appropriations would not exceed $75,000,000 annually. Instead of that, however, it will rim up to $200,000,000 next year, and if the applications now on file abould be passed upon favorably, as Mr. Raum has passed upon favorably, as Mr. Raum has passed upon all examined during the past year, the amount will be increased to something over $300,000,000 annually, which is more than all the other expenses of the government combined.

The democratic leaders realize that something must be done at once to stop this wholesale robbery, and when the new congress meets the question of pensions will be one of the most important it will have to consider.

The most important office Mr. Cleveland

The most important office Mr. Cleveland will have to fill, in view of the present condition of affairs, will be that of commissioner of pensions. Whoever he appoints will have a difficult position to fill, but it is absolutely necessary, in the opinion of all leading democrats, that a corrageous and just man be-appointed to fill this position. Candler for Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

A movement is on foot here among the old members of congress with whom Colonel Allen D. Candler, of Gainesville, served, to have him tendered the position of assistant secretary of the interior when the democrats assume power. Colonel Candler was one of the most popular members of the house, and his ability was recognized by his associates. Should Colonel Candler consent to accept he is almost certain to be appointed.

Two Lives fost in a Tenement House—Fire in Brooklyn.

New York, December 2.—Fire in a tenement of Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, this morning resulted in the death of two persons, father and child, and the serious injury of a number of others. The dead are: Michael Doyle and his three-year-old daughter, Nellie. The fire spread with great rapidity, and the panie-stricken immates stood at windows imploring aid. Those on the first floor were rescued by the firemen. Doyle attempted to save his children by throwing them from a window, and had tossed two of them when he himself and Nellie fell to the ground, both being killed. Mrs. Doyle and the remainder of the family were rescued in safety. Before those of the higher stories were rescued a number were seriously burned. The financial loss is small.

Tax the Immigrants.

Washington, December 2.—The superinitendent of immigration reports that 587,663 immigrants arrived in this country during the last fiscal year, 2,801 of whom came in violation of law, and were returned to their hones. Sixty housand Canadians enter the Usified States every spring and return to their homes in the fail to spend their earnings in their country. Our commissioner think it might be advisable to extend the fifty cent a head tax to all immigrants coming over our northern and southern borders, wages being here on an average of 40 per cent higher than in Canada, and a 100 per cent higher than in Mexico.

INTERESTING DISCUSSIONS OF PLANS

Proposed by the Great Leaders of Finance.

AN ENGLISHMAN ATTACKS AMERICA.

And Says That We Are Trying to Make Europe Pull the Chestnuts

Brussels, December 2.—In its report to the international monetary conference today the special committee appointed to consider the various plans declared that the proposal of Rothschild was extremely interesting and worthy; at the same time, of serious attention. The committee had decided, however, to especially recommend to the conference the Moritz-Levy plan of withdrawal from circulation of all bank notes and gold coins below the nominal value of 20 francs and the issue of silver and paper currency having the same purchasing power as gold coin below 20 francs. It is understood the delegates from France, Italy, Belgium, Norway, Sweden and Russia were opposed to the Rothschild plan. Delegates of the Latin union disamproved of the plan on account of the opposition to make 43 peace the maximum purchase price of silver and refused to be conciliated even when this figure was raised to a agher one. The American delegates are determined to persist in advocating their plans of bimetallism and believe the conference should remain in session until there had been an opportunity for thorough discussion.

The report of the special committee said that before considering the plans of Rothschilds, Moritz, Levy and Zeetbeer, they had tried to clear the way by getting answers from delegates to four vital questions.

The first was, "What measures will the silver-producing countries take to restrict or regulate production?" Henry W. Cannon had answered that no artificial means of regulating the production of silver evisated in the answered that no artificial means of regu-lating the production of silver existed in the United States, and legislation to that end-is improbable. Deputy Don Jaquin Casasus made a similar reply for Mexico.

The second question had been: "What are the prospects regarding the future production of silver?" Casasus had answered that in Mexico the production had reached its maxi-mum, the tax having been reduced from 3c, to 7 1-2 per cent. Mr. Cannon had answered that silver production in the states was con-fined to six states and three territories. The extension of the Rocky Mountain Rallway had opened a large number of mines, whose total production, although unknown, had reached, or exceeded, the highest previous average.

reached, or exceeded, the highest previous average.

The third question had been: "What is the policy of the United States concerning sliver purchases?" Mr. Cannon had answered that the democratic and republican parties and the bankers of New York had declared it favor of a repeal of the sliver purchasing act of 1800, and this act, in all probability will be repealed, if all international agreement were made at the present conference.

The fourth question had been: "What is the policy of India in the matter of sliver coinage?" Sir Guiford Molesworth had answered that as long as the hope of an international agreement existed India would be reluctant to alter her present money system, but if the conference of the united action were lost, India would feel obliged to act for herself. The adoption of the single gold standard bristled with difficulties, which excited the apprehensions of India's mercantile world, yet she felt assured that her adoption of gold monometallism would be still more disastrous to countries already having to or gold monometallism would be still more disastrous to countries already having a single gold standard. The only satisfactory solution of the problem he could see would be international bimetallism, in which India would gladly join the Latin union.

Discussing the Rothschild Plan.

After disposing of the four questions and answers the committee had proceeded to a discussion of Rothschild's plan. Opponents of the plan had contended that natural economic laws would neutralize the effects of such an artificial mode of trying to appreciate silver. The act necessitating government purchases of silver in the states had falled signality, not only to raise the price, but also to prevent its falling. Moreover in 1889 and 1891 Europe had absorbed 300,000,000 francs worth of silver for colnage without having had any effect in preventing the depreciation of silver.

To these objections Rothischild had replied that the arguments of his opponents were entirely one sided. The American experiment had been quife conclusive.

Senor Osma, a Spanish delegate, then presented Rothschild's plan in the form of a bill providing that European countries should purchase 30,000,000 ounces of silver annually on condition that the United States should continue their present purchase and that Mexico and India should maintain unlimited colnage, each nation's quota of the purchase to be determined at some future date and each being free to effect the purchase in its own manner.

At this point, the report states, a wide After disposing of the four questions and being free to effect the purchase in its transact.

At this point, the report states, a wide divergency of opinion became apparent in the committee on the question whether a central international organization should be created to purchase silver in a lump for all the contracting powers and then allot each country its share, or each country should purchase its own share independently of all others. No decision was reported on this matter.

As to Levy's Plan.

The committee decided not to enter deeply into the complications of Adolph Zeetlebeer's plan, but to confine themselves to Moritz-Levy's proposals. The recommendations for Rothchild's plan was defeated by a vote of 7 to 6.

As to Levy's Plan.

Rothchild's plan was defeated by a vote of 7 to 6.

As regards Levy's plan the committee took the action already indicated with the approval of a large majority.

Nevertneless Sir C. Fremantle, delegate for Great Britain declared that he was unable to pledge England to withdraw her smaller gold colns unless in connection with some such plan as that proposed by Rothschild.

After discussing the report and the general questions of principle involved in the battle of stadards, the delegates decided against reverting at once to a discussion of the original American proposals, lest such should lead to a premature dissolution of the conference.

lead to a premature dissolution of the conference.

The conference adjourned after passing a resolution to meet again next Tuesday to discuss the Moritz-Levy plan.

During the discussion today, a Dutch delegate, Aliard. expressed strongly bimetallist views. Mr. Currier, a delegate for Great Britain, created the first sensation of the conference by making a fierce attack on the United States for their attitude toward the silver question. He dehounced the selfish policy of the American government, and warned other delegates against pulling chestnuts out of the fire for the states. They wished to make a scapegoat of Europe, he said, in the present conference. He denied the attempt to raise the price of silver in defiance of national laws and by trivial artificial measures.

Exmore, Va., December 2.—Today Was favorable for ducking. Mr. Cleveland went out with George Doughly to the south end of High Shoal. When starting for the blind, Mr. Cleveland appeared in exceptionally high spirits. He said that if he could not hit ducks, he would start a Fourth of July among them. When entering the sail boat, which conveyed him to the channel, Cut Hargis offered to assist Mr. Cleveland, who said he felt younger than Hargis looked. He expressed himself as feeling younger than a sixteen-year-old boy. The ducks were flying in considerable numbers, and Mr. Cleveland succeeded in bagging some nineteen brant, some ten broad-bill dippers and five shell ducks.

The party returned to the island shortly after 4 o'clock.

The president-elect this afternoon received an invitation from the manager c. Hygeia hotel, Old Point Comfort, to visit that resort. In view of the fact that Mr. Cleveland will leave for the north late Sunday evening, it is considered improbable that he will accept the invitation. The programme for the remainder of his stay upon the island is a final all-day ducking exnedition tomorrow and a quiet rest indoors Sunday, and the homeward journey Sunday night.

It was less than ten minutes after he was left by his brother, who went to dinner, that he was found dead. Heidt had been in bad health, but his domestic relations were happy, and his business prosperous. He came from Georgia some twenty years ago, and has relatives in Forsyth and Jonesboro.

BOLD NEAR POWDER SPRINGS.

Great Excitement in Cobb County Over the Powder Springs, Ga., December 2. (Special.)—There is great excitement in the Moon neighborhood, three miles north-west of Powder Springs.

Parties prospecting there have found three or four parallel veins rich in gold, and the earth anywhere near the veins, bearing coarse gold in paying quantities. This is the same lend that runs from north-east Georgia down by Villa Rica into Alabama. The parties have taken out some gold and have gone into Atlanta to make arrangements for purchasing the property and making pr going regularly to work. The gold is rough, showing that it has never been moved from its matrix. Every one in the neighborhood thinks he has a gold mine and they are making things hum up that way.

THE ALABAMA LEGISLATURE.

THE ALABAMA LEGISLATURE.

A Member Thinks Legislators Worth a Dellar and a Quarter a Day.

Montgomery, Ala., December 2—(Special.)—
The legislature spent the greater part of today in discussing a joint memorial to congress favoring the Nicaraugua canal. A strong fight was made in the house over an amendment which gave the endorsement of the legislature provided the government was not called upon to endorse the bonds of the constructing company. This amendment was defeated by a vote of 46 to 48, and the memorial was then adopted.

The matter of the reduction of expenses took a new form today and the knife was put into a new place by a bill introduced by Mr. Knight, of Haie, reducing the pay of members of the general assembly from $4 to $1.25 per day, and chopping the mileage from 10 cents per mile to 3 cents.

A bill was introduced in the senate to legalize primary elections of political parties and to provide for the punishment of frauds perpetrated in them.

Chicago, December 2.—There is a strong rapid-growing moral and religious sentiment in favor of the repeal of the world's fair Sunday closing act. Several prominent clergymen favor the movement. "The Sunday closing of this spectacle will be very unfortunate for many thousands of our countrymen who would, be tempted to spend the day in dissipation. In their name I would favor opening the fair Sunday after-noons to evening with the provisions that all the machinery should be stopped and all me-chanical and laboring work that will not be-urgently necessary should cease. In this I do not see any descration of the Sabbath."

And Somebody Else Will Be Called to Form

And Semebody Else Will Be Called to Form a Ministry.

Paris, December 2.—M. Brisson confessed that he is unable to form a ministry. The chief cause of failure belog the refusal of M. Bourgeors to accept the portfolio of the interior, previously held by the late premier, and the refusal of M. Perier de Larsen to join the intended compromise cabinet. The announcement of Bisson's failure caused a feeling akin to consternation, and there is an increasing apprehension of danger to the republic in a prolongation of the crisis.

Pittsburg, December 2.—Chief Brown, of the department of public safety, today re-voked the order closing disreputable houses. This action was taken after Mayor Gourlay had publicly said that the short notice given by the police was "cruel, inhuman and un-just."

Cheyenne, W., December 2.—(Special.)— This afternoon, accompanied by several men, Governor-elect Osborne went to the capitol and asked the janitor to show him into the executive rooms, urging as his plea that he wanted to see the condition of the furniture. The janitor refused to admit him without the authority of the acting governor.

Governor Osborne sent for a carpenter and ordered him to open a window leading to the executive chamber. By the use of a chisel the window easing was removed, the sash thrown up and the party took possession.

Osborne then announced himself governor saying that he had taken the oath of office before a notary public. The returns from the various counties have not all been received, consequently the state board of canvassers have not yet made a complete canvass of the returns.

The canvass is now going on. Osborne is tired of waiting and does not propose to be counted out. Bishop Fitsgerald made some very touching remarks at this stage of the proceedings. He reminded the aged brothers who were worn out in the service of their Master that they were not being pushed aside, that the church was only providing for aged and infirm servants, that they were still battling for the Lord as they went down the slope of life.

Rev. J. E. Harrison, of the Tennessee Conference, representing The Tennessee Advocate was presented to the conference, and addressed the body in its behalf. Quite an interesting event of the day was the reception of Rev. J. A. Thurman, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is quite an able and prominent divine, which fact makes the event doubly important. The conference regarded the admission of Rev. Mr. Thurman as of great interest.

The call was here suspended and Dr. Tillet, dean of the faculty of Vanderbilt university was introduced and proceeded to address the conference in the interest of that institution. Question second, "who remain on trial?" was then taken up. J. W. Taylor, H. M. Harrison, J. T. Daves, H. S. Bugg, John R. Lewis, Clayton Quillian, H. S. Bradley, Jr., and J. W. F. Gilreath were acted upon.

Fourth question, "who are admitted in full connection?" was propounded, and the following brothers were passed to that relation: John Spler, F. W. McClesky, John W. Quillian, W. T. Hunnleutt, M. CHATTANOOGA SHAKEN UP.

A Vibration of the Earth Startles the Chattanooga, December 2.—About 3 o'clock this morning a decided shock was felt in this section, extending from Hill City, a suburb north of this town, to the summit of Missionary ridge, an area of about two and a half miles square. The shock was apparently from north to south. Doors in houses flew open, piles of lumber upset, coal at shutes rolled down, and water vibrated. Old residents claim that the shock was caused by the breaking down of some of the enormous caves which honeycomb the geological formations here. No casualties reported.

And at Nashville. Nashville. Tenn. December 2.—An earth-quake shock was felt here at 3:40 this morn-ing. It lasted three seconds. While very slight here, southern Tennessee was violent-ly shaken.

Knew He Had Enemies.

An article was written not long ago by a man to whom Mr. Gould was disposed to be confidential, in which the great mancier said: "I never take notice of what is said about me. I am credited with, and abused for things I have never done. It would be idle on my part to attempt to contradict the newspapers and street rumors. As to the numerous enemies I have, any man in my position is liable to have them. With me the bitterest enemies always proved to be men whom I have rendered services. This seems to be in accordance with the laws of human nature. If you save a man's life he is sure never to forgive you, for his vanity cannot tolerate the idea of "our being his benefactor. If you render a man a service once you must become his slave and be at his service all your life long. And his claims upon you will constantly go on crescendo. I'll tell you that, as a general thing, I do my best to be on good terms with everybody I come in contact with. I'm not of a quarrelsome composition, but on the other hand, I have the disadvantage of not being sociable. Wall street men are fond of company and sport. A man makes $100,000 here and immediately buys a yacht, begins to drive fast trotters, and becomes a sport generally. My tastes lie in different direction. When business hours are over I go home and spend the remainder of the day with my wife, my children and the books in my library. Every man has natural inclinations of his own. Mine are thoroughly domestic. They are not calculated to render me particularly popular in Wall street."

An old Partner Talks.

An Old Partner Talks.

An important announcement in reference to the Gould interests is made by Mr. Washington E. Connor, who, until a few days ago, was a business partner of Mr. Gould. Mr. Connor said:

"The bulk of Mr. Gould's property has been placed in the hands of trustees, thus effectually tying up his interests in such corporations as Manhattan, Western Union and Missouri Pacific. This will prevent the Gould interest being divided or the stocks going on the market. Mr. Gould has not been active in Wall street for some years. For two years past the practical management of his affairs has been in the hands of his son, George. Mr. Gould's death will not change the intrinsic value of his properties one iota.

What Chauncey Depew Knows.

What Chauncey Depew Knows. When the news of the death was received at the office of Chauncey Depew, he said:

"Mr. Gould has been for some time unloading his property upon his sons, Edward and George, who are now identified with most of his property, which is so concentrated that it will no be affected by his death. The boys will carry out their father's policy, and I do not think his death will either affect the market temporarily or in the future."

On the Stock Exchange. The effect of the news of Jay Gould's death on the stock exchange this morning was anxiously awa'ted. There was an interval of nearly an hour between the time the first news of his death reached the street and the opening of the exchange, and noth ing else but the death of the sage financier and the possible effect of his death on the and the possible effect of his death on the properties with which he was prominently identified was discussed. It was the consensus of opinion among brokers that there would be some selling of those properties, but none would admit that there was any fear of an active selling. Shrewd brokers were of the opinion that the properites were well protected and nothing in the shape of a very decaded break would occur. When the market did open there was a large crowd in the board room and for a time there were considerable offerings of Goulders, notably Missouri Pacific, Western Union, Manhattan and Atcaison stocks, were also sold to a considerable extent, but they only broke fractionally. Missouri Pacific made the greatest decline—1 3-4 per cent, to 54, but recovered in the first fifteen minutes to 55. The market then steadled somewhat. There was vry little excitement at the opening of the market.

Discussed at Washington. Washington, December 2.—The death of Jay Gould was the universal subject of discussion in official circles this morning. Secretary Foster voiced the opinion of the administration when he said that Gould's death would have little or no effect on the money market of the United States; that his death had been discounted, and the fact that he had withdrawn from active participation in Wall street several years ago, could not now disturb business.

What Philadelphia Bankers Think. What Philadelphia Bankers Think.
Philadelphia, December 2.—The death of Gould was the one topic of conversation in Philadelphia financial circles today. The consensed of opinion among leading bankers was, that while his death might have a temporarily depressing effect upon the market, the influence would soon be spent.

Effect of the News Abroad. London, December 2.—Fuller particulars of the effect of Gould's death upon the market here show that for a moment the news caused thorough disorganization, and the Missouri Pacific, Kansas, wabask and Union Pacific stock were especially pressed for sale. There was a sharp decline, instantly succeeded by a reaction, under which the stocks almost entirely recovered from the decline. This rapid recovery was attributed to the effect of estrier cable dispatches preparing the people for the death, so the news, when it came, and not take altogether by surprise the market.

Jay Gould was in Atlanta one year ago last February and was given a public reception by the business men of the city at the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Gould came south with Mr. John H. Inman, and his trip was the occasion of much talk and speculation. With Mr. Gould was his family physician, Dr. Munn, who was with him during his last illness, and his daughter, Miss Helen Gould. His health then was not the best, and the trip was as much one of recreation with Mr. Gould as anything else. He and his party were met at the union depot by Mayor Hemphill and a delegation from the city council. The ladies of the party were driven to the Kimball, while Mr. Gould and Mr. Inman and Dr Munn were driven to the city hall, where the leading business men of the city had congregated to greet the great millionaire. The party was received warmly, and for an hour Mr. Gould was kept busy shaking hands with Atlantians. After that he and those with him were driven over the city. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Inman gave a reception at their home on Peachtree street, at which Atlanta society was out in full. Mr. Gould was much pleased with what he saw of Atlanta and spoke of the thrift and enterprise of the city.

Rome, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)—Last night a foul murder was committed near Subligna, in Walker county.

Yesterday a negro farmer, named Natt Ellis, came to Rome with three bales of cotton on a two-horse wagon. He sold the cotton, and, after visiting several stores and buying a considerable quantity of goods, he started for his home late in the afternoon. He had $70 in money and a large lot of goods.

About 9 o'clock his team reached home alone, and his family became alarmed and started to hunt for him. About two miles from home they found him lying on his back in the middle of the road dead. His breast was litterally riddled with bullets. His pockets had been turned inside out, and all of their contents and his goods was gone, and his coat had been taken from his body by the ghouls in their eagerness to rob the dead man's body.

It is supposed that he was fired on from the woods. There is no clue as to his assailants.

Raleigh, N. C., December 2.—(Special.)— At 8 o'clock last night at the home of Randal McDonald, an aged white man, who lives in a lonely part of Moore county midway between Sanford and Carthage, a horrible double murder was committed.

Mr. McDonald and his two sisters, both aged, were seated in front of a fire. Suddenly there was a knock at the door. It was opened and in stepped a stranger, a powerfully built mulatto, who drew a revolver and demanded McDonald's

As he made this demand the elder sister screamed. In an instant the man shot her dead. The other sister shricked and attempted to run. The murderer shot her down, the ball making a fatal wound.

Then he struck McDonald, who is very feeble, and commanded him on the pain of instant death to give up all his money. McDonald gave him $25-all he had in the house-and the stranger went away; leaving one woman dead, and the other dying within a few feet of her.

It was some time before the murder was discovered. McDonald going to a near neighbor's house and calling for help was the first alarm. Today there was in tense excitement in all that section and by daylight the pursuit began, several hundred people taking part in it. A lynching will swiftly follow the murderer's capture.

Chicago Is Infested | with Thugs and Chicago, December 2.-(Special.)-Every citizen of Chicago is becoming his own policeman. If, late at night, an individual is seen walking in the middle of the stree with one hand in his overcoat pocket, it's fair to assume that he is armed with a big revolver and is likely to use it on any honest citizen who should say "good evening" to him.

The audacity of the burglars is astound ing. Some time early this morning, or late last night, seven safes were broken open in the Equitable building, not over a block from police headquarters.

Henry W. Martin's rooms on the seco floor were next visited, and the safe blown. $1,470 and a lot of jewelry rewarding the burglar's efforts here.

On the fourth floor, the burglars obtained an entrance to the office of Attorney A. B. Chilcoat by pounding the door to pieces. They evidently used a sledge for the purpose. No money was obtained. Two men could have done the work, but the detectives seem to think that there were three. They were professionals as the work shows.

A Famous Thief Caught.

A 3 o'clock this morning Robert Stack, who sleeps above his saloon, at 350 West Indiana street, heard a noise in his barroom. On going down stairs he saw a ma bending over his money drawer. Stack fired a shot at the burgiar, who leaped over the bar and sought refuge behind it. Behind the barrier he defied Stack to approach him. Four policemen, who were near, came up, and the man was arrested. He proved to be Philo Durfee, one of the slickest and best known thieves in the world, and who has been arrested innumerable times in this city. but has always managed to escape punishment through some "pull" he possesses Officer Murmane carries a bullet in his hip, which was put there by Durfee in 1874, while the latter was resisting arrest. In 1878 Durfee was implicated in the famous Jaffray burglary, at 120 Fifth avenue. Officer Race was shot by some member of the gang while questioning them as they were dis-posing of the booty at a pawnbroker's. Durfee is also implicated in the shooting of a West Side policeman. He is now under indictment for the latter affair and was out on bond. He is equally well known in Georgia, where he usually operates in winter for about a month after cotton begins to move. He is wanted there, in New Orleans, Au-gusta, New York, Boston, San Francisco and many other places.

The Suburbs Are Organizing.

So bold have thieves and sandbaggers become that the citizens of Berwyn and Lavergne, despairing of police protection, have determined to organize for the protection of vergne, despairing of police protection, nave determined to organize for the protection of their lives and property. An armed citizens' patrol is their only hope there, and vigilants were sworn in there today as well as at Lakeview, Evanston and Riverside.

A bold daylight robbery occurred on Michigan avenue this afternoon. Miss Jennie Wheeler, a wealthy New York woman, was grasped by the throat and robbed of her valuable jewelry and diamonds. The thief escaped, No clue.

Shell workers enticed Henry Heckrot, of Bay City, Mich., to the lake front and robbed him of $400 today. They told him there had been a big explosion on the lake and mutilated arms and legs were being washed ashore. He accompanied them to the lake shore to see the awful sight, and lost his money.

Charles Vanbam, a commission merchant of Water street, who was fatally injured by being sandbagged last night, was found lying unconscious this morning a few yards from his home in South Chicago. In their haste the thugs had broken his watch chain in two, taking his watch and all his valuables.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT.

MIN Owners Have a Good Supply of Cotton. Goold's Death Did Not Disturb Finances. New York, December 2.—Bradstreet will say the severe Pacific coast storm Inteferes with trade temporarily. There has been a clearance a cargo of barley for London and another with general merchandise to the west coast of South America. Four of the Augusta, Ga., shirting and drill mills report a large business and good profits last year, and this year the outlook is for a continued strong demand. No reasonable advance in the price of cetton can now curtail price materially, so far as reported to Broadstreets. Mill owners at the south evidently have a fair stock of low price raw material. In reply to our inquiry about the stock of low priced cotton on hand at eastern cotton mile or contracted for by them, our Boston correspondent wires that cotton goods mannfacturers have stocks of 8 cent cotton to carry them to April 10th, and contracts for enough work from 8 to 10 cents to keep them busy until the middle of June, 1893. A few mills have contracted ahead for an entire year. Wool is very quiet; prices barely steady and no trading. No speculative feeling in any direction. Mill-owners are buying for want only. Our Australian takings are only one-half those of a year ago.

Cotton reacted somewhat from the recent highest quofations, due to realizing sales. Opinions south, as well as north, have been expressed that short cotton crop elevators may be discounting the reduced yield too heavily. Some cotton fabrics, even prints, are less active than print cloth. Woollens are quiet. Philadelphia worsted spinners report business dull. The advance in ingrain carpets is maintained. Throughout the south, as indicated by advices from Galveston, Birmingham, New Orleans, Augusta, Atlanta, Charleston, Richmond and Memphis, all fancy groceries, fireworks and other Christ, mas specialities are in demand. Other wholesale lines relatively quiet. There is a good demand for rice, which is lower.

south, St. Louis adding that spring orders for furniture, oats, sole leather and shoes are making trade quite active.

Jay Gould's death results in considerable stock market activity, but anticipation of either speculative, liquidation or a successful bear raid failed realization. The event being expected, leading interests supported the market, which shows a firm tone and higher prices in most instances, particularly Gould stocks, in the face of the engagement of $1,500,000 gold for Europe.

Underlying sentiments of speculation, however bearish on the prospect of the Brussels conference, have no practical results, while the strength of exchange points to further gold export. Foreign bankers are unanimous that the absence of supply bills against cotton exports renders further gold shipments inevita. le. Sliver is slightly weaker, the limited speculative demand created by the Rothschild propositions at Brussels having disappeared.

WATSON'S MEETING AT THOMSON. He Had a Procession and Raised Five Hur

dred Dollars. Thomson, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)— The long advertised grand rally of the third party occurred here today. There were people from all over the district. There were some 3,000 present, about two-thirds were some 3,000 present, about two-thirds of them were negroes. Watson was to make his farewell wail before resuming his duties in Washington.

The affair began by a procession marching through the streets headed by the Hon. mas E. and some of his white followers and an incongruous conglomeration of hu manity, mostly negro men, and negro women, making the day hideous with their yells.

The præssion marched to a thicket on the outskirts of town, where Mr. Watson made his grievances known. He whooped the boys up and tried to revive their spir-its and zeal. He abused the democratic party as usual and pald his special respects party as usual and paid his special respects to Augusta. He said he was going to start the campaign for election two years hence just as soon as his present term expired. But the collection was the most important feature. The congressman, who, two years ago promised to do so much for the downtrodden and oppressed people if elected, now, calls upon this same people for aid, and the same hand that chuckled little negro babies under the chin, was today extended to the negro men, women and children receiving contributions, even accepting nickels and dropping them in the sfot. It is understood that the crowd contributed of their hard earnings some $500 in cash. The meeting seemed to be a disappointment and quite a number of the faithful departed this evening with unsteady steps and a look indicating that they were sadder but this evening with unsteady steps and a look indicating that they were sadder but

The Famous Harden Will Case Came to a Termination.

SOME PECULIAR TESTIMONY INTRODUCED

The Seniors Beat the Lawyers-Another Exciting Election Results in Mr, Lucas Winning.

Athens, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)— The Harden will case, about which so much has been said in the newspapers, was finally settled in the superior court this morning. Miss Mary Harden, who has been ex-tensively written of as the Georgia sweet-heart and fiancee of John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home," and who died a few years ago without ever hav-ing married, left a nice estate, which she willed in toto to her second cousin, Miss Evie Jackson, of this city.

About three years ago the will of Miss Harden was probated in common form, giving the interested parties seven years to enter a contest. About a year ago an effort was made to have the will admitted to probate in solemn form. This brought forth a formal contest from the Harden heirs. Colonel W. C. McCall and Hon. H. H. Carlton, of this city, were employed by the Harden heirs, who attacked the will on the grounds that the testatrix was of unsound mind when the testament was executed, and that Mr. A. M. Jackson, father of the legatee, exercised undue influence over said testatrix to induce her to make the will in favor of Miss Jackson.

Messrs. Erwin & Cobb, attorneys for the propounders, introduced rebuttal testimony from members of three generations of the family, showing that Miss Harden was not only of sound mind but possessed a very superior intellect and education. The only testimony that was in favor of the Harden being was that the testation results. heirs was that the testatrix was an eccen tric character, and lived a very secluded

The evidence introduced this morning was of the most sensational nature. One witness testified that the testatrix was insane, that she always carried a blue umbrella over her, rain or shine, and always walked in the middle of the street, and that she slept with her shoes and stockings on and covered with nothing but a bundle of rags, that her toe nails were four and ahalf inches long when she died, and that she wore one bonnet for ten years. A number of anonymous letters were introduced that have been written to Miss Jackson, the legatee, of the most injurious and malign, as well as sensational character.

Messrs. Cobb & Erwin were highly complimented on the management of the case. Judge Erwin's speech was one of the most inasterly ever delivered in the Clarke country courtbase.

inasterly ever delivered in the Clarke county courthouse.

Thus the name of Miss Harden, the beautiful Georgia girl who captivated so completely the heart of the author of the world's famous and favorite ballad "Home, Sweet Home," whose brilliant intellect gave her a high position in the government service and rank among the authors of the time, has probably been brought prominently into public notice for the last time, and she will soon be numbered among the forgotten.

man and child in it than any other city on earth.

Today the great primary contest between Mr. Lucas and Mr. Booth for the democratic nomination for alderman from the second ward took place. It was a hot fight. On last Saturday the candidates tied for the position, and there were a great many little things connected with the contest that were far from satisfactory, on either one side or the other, and that dissatisfaction was most plainly and emphatically expressed in broad English terms on every street corner. All the week midnight caucuses have been numerous.

In today's contest Mr. F. W. Lucas was elected over Mr. John Booth by five majority. Mr. Lucas is one of the oldest and best citizens of Athens and his election will be satisfactory to every class of people.

result of his integrity, high character and personal popularity.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed with regard to the status of city politics, and it is almost certain that a citizens' ticket will be put in the field to oppose the regular primary nominees for some of the city offices. If this is done the probability is that the primary system will be retired entirely in future. There is strong opposition to some of the acts of the old council on the nart of the people, and if the complexion of the new board resembles that of the old in the least after the nominations are declared, there will be some hard fighting.

A PAINFUL OPERATION

Is Performed Upon a Six Year Old Boy-It Made Him Worse. Made Him Worse.

Atlanta, Ga., November 21, 1892.—
Messrs. Editors: In 1886 my son William suffered much pain caused by a cancer of the mouth. By advice of physicians, in an endeavor to remove the cancer an operation was performed, extending to the jawbone (which they scraped), but the cancer returned shortly after and commenced growing rapidly again. Finally after trying many remedies in vain, I commenced to give him S. S. S., and with the second bottles had been taken, the cancer disappeared entirely, and though six years have elapsed, there has been no return, and I have every reason to believe that he '23 permanently cured. His cure is due exclusively to S. S. S. R. MURDOCK, 95 Factory Street.

CRAZY ON

But Monday He Was O. K.—He Asked to Be Locked Up, and Now He's Find-ing Sad Trouble in Getting Out

William Anderson, twenty-four years of age, and a native of the Palmetto State, is held at police headquarters, said to be insane, although he has every appearance

Anderson has been held since Sunday,

Anderson has been held since Sunday, and all last night he paced his cell in agony, asking every one who came near him, in an eager tone, when he would be liberated. Sunday Anderson appeared at the police station and stated that he was crazy and wanted to be locked up. He had only been on a drunk, and by the next morning he was alright. A day and a night had been was alright. A day and a night had been sufficient for him to recover from the effects of his Saturday night drunk, and he wanted to be let out. He had been employed as a clerk in Mr. S. C. Glass's store on Marietta atreet. Mr. Glass's said Anderson had been alright Saturday night, and was never off except when drinking. Chief of Detective Wright notified Anderson's father that his son was being held here as a lunatic. That was on Monday. Yesterday a reply was received from the father of the young man. It had been expected all along that Anderson's father would come to Atlanta on receipt of Captain Wright's let-ter, when it was the intention of the police authorities to turn the demented young ter, when it was the intention of the police authorities to turn the demented young man over to his parent.

In a letter to Mr. Glass yesterday, Mr. Anderson stated his intention of not coming to Atlanta, and he asked Mr. Glass to do all he could for his son and write him.

Immediately upon receipt of this letter Mr. Glass called at police headquarters and had a talk with the young man. He was convinced after a few minutes' conversation with him, that he was perfectly sound mentally, and that there was no use for keeping him longer. He told the young man if his release could be secured he could come back and go to work at his old job. Young Anderson was very anxious to get out, but the officers thought it best to detain him a while longer. Anderson seemed terribly worried about it all last night.

"It was only a drunk," said he, "I got on a drunk Sunday and asked him to lock me up. He did it, and here I am yet. It is enough to drive a sane man crazy to stay in this horrible place. Just think of it, a whole week in this place—it's awful."

Anderson says he wants to get out today and go back to work.

A Matter for Congratulation.

Editor Constitution—It is most fortunate that all the gentlemen who are candidates for election as commissioners are unanimous against any change in the retail licenses for sale of liquors in the country. This matter is, however, regulated by state law, the strict enforcement of which will meet the approval of every gentleman aspiring to the commissioner's office. Thus there is eliminated from this friendly contest all the asperity which has characterized local elections in the past. The state law as it now stands prohibits the sale of alcoholic liquors within three miles of any church or schoolhouse outside of an incorporated town. A Matter for Congratulation the Stevens' Auction. Looking over the audiences which have assembled there during the past few days one sees the bon-ton of Atlanta, the street in front of their handsome establishment is crowded with the elegant equipages of fashionable society people.

The fact that Messrs. J. P. Stevens & Bro. have carried the largest stock of diamonds, watches, fine jewelry and silverware to be seen in this city, has drawn immense crowds to the auction. The store, however, is provided with comfortable seats, so that one can leisurely bid on the articles, or be entertained by the spirited bidding of others. A number of ladies have bought complete outfits of silverat prices that put these rich goods within the means of the most economical purchaser. An experienced buyer remarked yesterday that she never saw such a slaughter of valuable goods. This sales of course, means a great loss to the Messrs. Stevens, but they have determined to sell the whole stock out before Christmas, and are making a sacrifice in order to accomplish this purpose. Young man, instead of going west, we advise you to go to the Stevens auction, you will get rich about as quickly. the means of the most economical pur

Mr. Humphries's Explanation.

On the floor of the senate yesterday morning, rising to a question of personal privilege, Mr. Humphries, of the seventh district, thus referred to the part taken by him in the meeting held in the Gober investigating committee's room Wednesday night, and the impression then resting on his mind in regard to the spirit of that meeting:

"Mr. President—Evening before last a meeting was held in this capitol. I presided as chairman. I accepted the chairmanship, believing that the meeting was not one to upbraid or in any manner even remotely toriticise the Gober-Glenn committee. I have the most profound respect for and confidence in the integrity, wisdom and patriotism of each member of the committee. A rule for selecting a ham can be given in a few words: Select Ferris's hams. These and the boneless bacon by the same house are always to be relied upon. The cook may ply her art in vain, if the material be not right to start with. More delicious hams than those bearing the Ferris brand cannot be found and are not to be desired. But having selected the best proper cooking is then indispensable. I lay down my pen, for the savory odor of one of these delicacies of the dining table has so aroused my appetite that I can no longer forbear.—Mrs. Brown.

After a search through the school building he was unable to find any signs of fire.

But he did make some discoveries that convinces him and others of the police department, that the matter should be looked into thoroughly, and the parties guilty of the acts of vandalism he found had been committed, be punished. He found that the fence enclosing the school had almost been torn away. The fence is of wood, and the detective thinks that the families living near it have torn it away for firewood. The skeleton fence gives the place an ancient appearance and this with the other lawless acts that have been committed at the schoolhouse, leaves it a sadly dismantled building. The detectives will continue their investigations and they hope to get the guilty ones.

The burglaries at the schoolhouse have been of almost nightly occurrence. Besides burglaries at the schoolhouse the buildings and surroundings have been sadly defaced.

It was generally reported, how-ever, that the schoolhouse was set on fire in the basement a few nights ago, and but the building would have been destroyed. After a search through the school building

ATLANTA, GA., December 3, 1892.

It Should Pass.

Yesterday the committee of the whole reported the Soldiers' home bill back to the house with the recommendation that it pass. Under a call of the previous question it was resolved to vote on the bill next Wednesday at 11 o'clock.

All patriotic Georgians will be gratified to see this matter assuming such favorable shape. In the state campaign the third party made an issue of the home and piedged its candidates squarely against it. The verdict of the people by an overwhelming majority endorsed our old soldiers and the noble charity so generously donated for their relief.

Fresh from the people, and bearing in mind their instructions, the general assembly cannot fail to accept the home. Indeed the recommendation of the committee of the whole foreshadows the result. When the bill is put to a vote next Wednesday, it is to be hoped for the honor of Georgia that the majority for it will be a big one.

The argument is exhausted. The question is as thoroughly understood now as it ever will be. It has been viewed from the standpoint of duty and patriotism, and there is nothing left but to act like true Georgians, and wheel into line with our sister states in paying this long-delayed debt to the bravest band of heroes that ever won for themselves an immortal page in the annals of their country!

The Gober Investigation.

If the primary purpose of a few news papers, which are making desperate efforts to besmirch the character of Judge Gober, is to injure him-whether guilty or not, they probably derive some satis faction from the encouragment they are receiving by being afforded frequent opportunity to attack the investigating com-

We believe that not only Judge Gober. but the committee, has been dealt with in an exceedingly unjust manner, and that when the matter is finally settled it will so develop to the satisfaction of all.

But in the meantime we protest agains the constant attacks on the committee which is conducting the investigation. This committee is composed of representative Georgians, and there is not a man on It who is not absolutely above reproach, so far as any insinuation that his work as a public servant is not controlled by what believes to be right. None have yet gone far enough, in their desperate effort to besmear the character of Judge Gober to charge the committee direct with improper motives; but the effect of the pe culiar character of criticism against it amounts to practically the same thing.

As the matter is now before the com mittee it strikes us that the newspaper effort to prejudice the report and condemi Judge Gober is decidedly unjust and deserving of censure.

If ever broad latitude has been given by an investigating committee, the counse against Judge Gober has certainly had abundant opportunity to present its side of the case. We understand that it has taken two or three stenographers to keep up with the evidence and that already not less than 700 pages of stenographic notes have been taken. The committee has been treated to every possible phase that the investigation could assume, and it is said that about half of the evidence so far in is absolutely irrelevant to any charge the committee has under investi-

So far, the work of the committee has been a fat thing for the stenographers; and, when the whole thing is finished and the evidence is published, the state will be out to the tune of about $1,000

We believe that the committee, instead of being subjected to the criticism of not allowing the counsel for the prosecution the full opportunity to which it was entitled, is rather to be censured for the un necessarily broad latitude that it has allowed the investigation to take.

The charges under investigation are of such a nature that the people should have a prompt verdict. The committee has been conducting the investigation for nearly a month, and the result is a mass of stenographic notes which two stenographers cannot transcribe in a week. think that the investigation should have been confined strictly to the charges involved, and the committee's statement that it was its desire to give to the pros ecuting counsel a full and fair hearing is not to our minds a satisfactory ex planation for the foolishly wide range of investigation which has, figuratively, embraced-everything from the arrival of the new comet to the change in the national administration.

As to the ruling of the committee that written arguments should be filed, we see nothing extraordinary so long as the rights of the counsel on neither side have been abridged. The written arguments are to be subjected to the examination of both sides with the right to rejoin. The whole matter is open for the investigation of the legislature and the public, and so long as there is nothing secret about it, and the counsel on both sides has a reasonable time to be heard from, we think that the effort to use this ruling of the committee to its prejudice will not be approved by those who are acquainted with the sterling integrity of those who compose it.

The Dead Money King. Jay Gould is dead!

The death of no American could create greater sensation throughout the repub-

He held no official station. His name is conspicuously absent from our roll of rulers and lawmakers, and yet in the whole long list there is not a man whose power ever equaled his.

He was a money king and something more. His active brain, his foresight, his energy, his towering ambition, his unparalleled insight into all the mysteries of finance, of business and of human nature astounded and amazed men, and caused them to speak of him with bated breath as the Wizard of Wall Street.

Less than three score years ago Jay

Gould started out a poor farmer's boy.

He had a good education, and one of his first ventures was the compilation of a county history. Then he tried a business venture and failed. He was soon on his feet again, and while still in his twenties he threw himself into the whirl of business in New York. From the first his idea was to control, to rule, to dominate. He bought out partners or crowded them out. He never held back from an enterprise for want of capital. In some way his will power enabled him to sway men, and he persuaded them to utilize his talents. He got control of the Erie railroad when he was a poor man and controlled it for years. With Jim Fisk he worked up the gold corner that caused the disastrous Black Friday in New York and wrecked so many fortunes all over the union. He made himself the monarch of stock and railroad circles. Competition fled before him. He had no rivals. When he looked upon anything and wish ed for it, that was enough. Midas-like, his touch seemed to turn everything to gold. The legislation, finance, commerce and industry of the greatest country on the globe became in large measure subject to his will, and he wrung tribute in every direction. He never made a mistake of management, was never checkmated, and the rash opponents who stood in his way never failed to rue their folly. For a generation this man has been abused, cursed and denounced by the pulpit and the press. Grand juries have tried to indict him. His life has been threatened, and he has perhaps been more generally criticised than any man in

This is history. So far as we are con cerned, we have nothing to say against the dead, but on the contrary we have a word to say for him. This millionaire. with his fortune of say from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000, was human. He loved his family, and his children do not share his unpopularity. His home life was delightful, and the Goulds never cared to make a display of their wealth in society. The head of the family did not shine as a philanthropist. He gave away very little, but when his children demanded money for charity he gave it freely. Perhaps f he had not been so reviled and hounded down he would have shown a brighter side to the world. Abuse made him sour and he took pleasure in striking back.

During the last few years Mr. Gould frequently showed that he was in sympathy with his fellow men, and he became deeply interested in religious matters. That he was not so black as his enemies painted him we feel satisfied, although we are far from holding him up as a mode citizen. In his way his career was Napoleonic. He may not have been a good man but he was a great man. If he had entered politics, he would doubtless have been a foremost American; but he chose to devote his genius to the world of business. The lessons of his life should be studied. They show that in this country the unknown lad, starting from the farm may rise to the very topmost height of wealth and power, and be in every respect the architect of his own fortunes. This is enough to say in the shadow of death. The future biographer and historian will see the great money king in a clearer light than we ever saw him. In the mean time let us remember that there are some who loved him, and they deemed him worthy of their love and honor.

The Conference in Madison.

The enterprising little city of Madison deserves credit for its hospitable enter tainment of the Methodist conference nov in session at that place. The town has literally thrown open its doors to the visitors, and has given itself up, for the time, to their entertainment. Atlantians who have attended the conference state that the hospitality shown by the people of Madison has never been excelled at any meeting of conference, and the visitors are naturally delighted with the enterprising little city. The conference is composed of repre sentative men and is one of the mos notable gatherings of its kind ever held in the state. Our reports indicate that the session is a successful one in every respect, and the Methodists of Georgia will read with genuine pleasure the satisfactory accounts received from the con-

The Cradle and Guardian of Liberty. Some of the republican organs pretend to be very indignant because Mr. Cleveland has described the south as the cradle as well as the guardian of civil liberty in America. And yet they know very well that there is no exaggeration in the

Mr. Cleveland might have gone very much further than this, and would doub less have done so if it had come in his way. He might have gone on and said that the south is the section in which the Anglo-Saxon race in this country will make its last stand against the pressurof foreign socialists and anarchists, and it is here, perhaps, a hundred years from now, that the great issue of free government-liberty without license-will have ment—interty without license—will have to be fought out again.

The sectionalists who edit the republi-can newspapers have done all they could to injure the south and the southern peo-ple. By their partism slanders and in-entions they have kept capital and migration away from here, and have con-spired to injure their own people and their own trade in order to obtain a partisan advantage in politics; but the descend-ants of these republican sectionalists will be grateful to the south for remaining true to their race and to the principle of honest government in the face of all the persecution that a powerful party was able to place upon them.

Standering Senator Hill.

The New York Herald, in its efforts to defeat Mr. Murphy for the senate in New York, publishes an absurd story charging Senator David B. Hill with an attempt to defeat Mr. Cleveland in New York state. We have no personal interest in Mr. Murphy whatever, feeling confident that the democratic party in New York state will send to the senate a man who thoroughly represents it: but it is the essence of injustice for The Herald, simply for the purpose of defeating Murphy, to flourish forth a slander on Senator Hill.

This is mugwumpery run mad, and it makes us feel of an office that is not worth lying about, that what is called independent journalism is wholly independent of the truth. Senator Hill's record was made up during the campaign. He was jealously watched by the mug-wump friends of Mr. Cleveland and the result was that his speeches were embodied into campaign documents for general degulation, and the Hill element, comprising an overwhelming majority of the party in New York state, voted solidly for the democratic candidates.

That is the record Senator Hill made, and it will stand.

English Cotton Reports. The London Times continues to talk about our big cotton crop, and it argues that the recent rise in price is solely due to speculative influences.

We expected just such talk from the other side of the water. The English cotton lords have controlled our markets so long that they are unwilling to accept the natural results of a short crop.

In this country an almost perfect system of collecting crop news has enabled us to make a very correct estimate of the number of bales produced this year. This estimate has been accepted in our markets and cotton has been rising for several weeks. In the face of these facts the baseless assertions of the English newspaper can have little weight. It is a part of their programme to put cotton down if a business campaign of falsehood can do it; but their game is just as well understood in New York and New Orleans as it is in London and Liverpool. The natural laws of supply and demand should regulate this matter. It is time to emancinate our great staple from foreign control, and the inventions of the London newspapers ought not to have the slightest effect in America. Give King Cotton a fair field and a fighting chance!

Europe and the Silver Question. Owing to the supersensitiveness of the monometallists of the north and east, the discussion that accompanies the reports of the proceedings of the international monetary conference is growing in interest. We have not been disposed to attach much importance to Mr. Rothschild's proposition looking to the purchase of $25,000,000 of silver a year by a syndicate of European nations, for the reason that it has been the policy of Europe during the past twenty years to employ every device for the depreciation of silver and the consequent appreciation of gold. But the alarmed monometallists to the north of us are making all sorts of interesting suggestions. They call attention to the position which even the humblest member of the Rothschild family occupies in the financial world, and declare that there must be more in the proposition than appears on the surface. They say that a member of the Rothschild family as prominent as the British representative would not make proposition so futile and ridiculous on the face of it unless there were some deeper purpose behind it. There may be something in this. The Rothschilds practically dictate the financial policy of Europe. They constitute the power behind the throne—the power behind the parlia ment. The probability is that the proposition submitted to the conference has been deliberately considered with regard to its remoter results, whatever these are expected to be. It is not to be supposed. in other words, that a Rothschild, holding a prominent position under the British government, would make a proposition traversing the silver policy of Europe unless he had consulted with the members of his family who hold the keys of the European treasuries, and with the ministers and cabinets of the countries most interested.

The Constitution may have its suspi cions in regard to the real importance of the Rothschild syndicate, but this does not prevent it from finding entertainment in the alarms of the goldolators in this country who are reading a rich harvest from the appreciation of the gold standard. These prosperous and prospering gentlemen have no Lancashire trouble to worry and no Indian situation to vex them. The clamors of their own people do not disturb them. They simply sit and watch the debts that are owing them grow in value. But now they are sud denly alive to the fact that the Rothschild proposition may mean something more appears on the face of it.

Another discovery seems to have been made, and it is this: That the representatives of the monometallist nations firmly elieve that if the government of the United States removes the artificial props it has placed under silver, the whole finar cial world will be compelled to face a catastrophe. We hear nothing now of any plan whereby silver may be permitted to seek its natural level. to be the stock argument both here and abroad-let the nations take their hands off silver and see where it would go to. The argument has disappeared, and in its place we see a member of the greatest family of financiers the world has ever seen busying himself in an effort to induce the governments of Europe to come to the aid of the United States in their attempt to bolster up allver by purely artificial measures. It is, indeed, a promising measures.

We said the other day that the con-car sky. It is not so much that the thachlid proposition is important, but exposure of the situation which it brought about is interesting. The ats of the conference thus far trate that Europe neither wants tal find its natural level. In other words, the monometallist nations desire to eat their cake and have it—a desire that flies in the face of common sense. They want to profit by the increasing value of gold, and yet they are afraid to face the catastrophe that lies behind the disuse of silver.

There is another result of the conference that will have a happy effect in this country. The American delegates will come home prepared to demonstrate that Europe has no supply of bullion silver to be dumped on the United States in the event that our mints are open to the free coinage of the metal. Therefore, we are free to say that the conference has assumed a shape and an interest that have not been looked for even by the public men of Europe. It will accomplish nothing directly, but the exposure that it has made of the European situation is, in itself, a happy result.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A new mental contagion that is sure to spread trans-Atlanticward is keeping England awake o' nights. It is what is known as the missing word competitions of the penny weeklies. The editor prints a paragraph with the last word, usually an adjective, missing. He invites his readers to guess the word at a shilling a try. Then he divides the pool among the winners. The scheme is by no means as pretty as it appears. In one of the competitions, closed this week, the pool contained more than $17,000, and each of the forty odd winners received almost $400. There are nearly a dozen such competitions weekly, and the craze is spreading at an enormous rate. Booksellers cannot keep pace with the and the craze is spreading at an enormous rate. Booksellers cannot keep pace with the demand for dictionaries and books of synonyms. Boarding house and restaurant life has a new terror added, for the beseechings of young women and others for suggestions or to join "my syndicate" are becoming unbearable. It has already been found necessary to employ additional clerks in the money order department of the postoffice. Only postal money orders are accepted by the managers of the scheme, and the regular force is unable to handle the recent increese of more than 250,000 a week of small orders drawn.

The New York Sun says: "It is a common remark that one white man is equal to ten African natives in battle. This is probably true if the natives are armed only with the own weapons; but it is not true if they have guns and know how to use them, and it is still further from true when the natives, ill further from true when the natives, anomeyans, for instance, are superior to nost African peoples in intelligence and courge. Colonel Dodds had only 4,000 soldiers, nostly well trained instives of Senegal, to phose to 12,000 Dahomeyans. His force as age a man too many, and he waited for inforcements before he undertook the last attles at Canna and Abomey. His strong link was his artillers, without which he point was his artillery, without which he would have been only on even terms with the enemy. His total loss in killed and wounded was about one-twelfth of his entire which was very large considering that he was fighting with a semi-barbarous foe."

The saying is literally coming to pass that "the hills around Atlanta are rapidly moving to town." There was a time when a man could stand on tep of the Kimball house and set more vacant hills than he could easily count but now the city has conquered nearly every elevatich in sight, and crowded them with the trophies of architecture. The latest capture in this respect is located just seven miles from the city on the Peachtree road. The village that was formerly known by the very unsavory name of "Buckhead" will henceforth be state's representature as "Atlanta Heights." That was detided a few days ago by the residents in that neighborhood, and an effort has already been set on foot to secure a government, post office for the new town. It will now begin to flourish in good earnest, and the day is not far distant when Atlanta will be proud of her young namesake. Since the path of development which thanta is taking is rather in that direction the new heights will constitute an objective point to which the city can grow. Already the homes of many of Atlanta's wealthy citizens adorn the avenue and stretch to the verge of Peachthe party was ecrapesed. of many of Atlanta's wealthy officens adorr or many of Atlanta's wealthy citizens adorn the avenue and stretch to the verge of Peach-tree creek. Atlanta Heights is only two miles beyond that point, and if the city Reeps up her present stride it will not be many years before a beautiful chain of architecture will connect her with the new settlement, and she connect her with the new settlement, and she can wear the title village as a watch charm.

Mr. Waiter Plant, who lives in that neighborhood, and who is full of enthusiasm over the prospects of the new heighths, said yesterday: "It is certainly a move in the right direction and is going to give new life and enterprise to the whole settlement. The people are in carness and they intend to make this place the sprightlest suburb within a dozen miles of Atlanta. It will not be many days before the nill around my house are covered with beautiful homes. I have heard quite a number say that they intend to build next spring, and my prophesy is that Atlanta spring, and my prophesy is that Atlanta Heights, within a year or two will be as large as Decatur." Mr. Pharr has been a resident of that lothlity for quite a number of yests, and he stands among the leading men of the community and his influence will be felt in the growth of the new suburb, as he rever looks back when he sets his hand to the plow.

Mr. Monroe Bickart is at his home on Windsor street, quite ill. All Thursday night his physicians were afraid that he could not recover, and throughout the night they watched bestde him. At one time through the night it was thought that he was dying, and the most radical treatment was resorted to to keep him alive. Towards morning he began to improve some, and throughout the day his condition was more hopeful. His physicians were with him again all last night, and towards morning his condition changed a little for the better. Drs. Giddings, Baird and Olmsted are attending him.

An honest penny. There are not so many of them in the world, but Andy Stewart, the gethem in the world, but Andy Stewart, the genial, popular tax collector has one, and every one about the tax collector's office prizes it highly. The penny, however, does not belong to Mr. Stewart, but is the property of Pulton county. Seven mouths ago a taxpayer came into the office, and in paying his tax is received a penny in change. Somehow that taxpayer went away and left that penny on the counter, in reach of all who came in. The penny-has remained there ever since, and the changes are that it will stay there forever. Since the peany was left on the counter, over nine thousand men have pdid in their taxes, and of that number more than one haif has picked up the copper, and laid it down again, after callium the attention of the tax collector to it.

A great big, reliow bloodhound passed through Atlanta yesterday on its way to Costa Rica. The dog was one of the largest and finest of its breed ever seen in the south. With the dog was the man who has had charge of him for the past two or three years. He is carrying the dog to Costa Rica for a party of New York and Fhiladelphia sportsmen, who are now on a big tiger hunt. The dog is thoroughly trained, and has been in more than one chase after the lion and the tiger. He has been in the jungles of Africa, and is said to be one of the best trailers in the world. Heavy chalits about the dog's neck and the careful watch the man kept over him while in the union depot, were enough to keep the crowd away from the car.

"Atlanta always was a pleasant town," remarked Mr. Marion Harris, a promising young member of the Macon bar, at the Kimball yesterday. "But I have found it more pleasgenial lot of people than those I come in contact with here. I went through the courtcontact with here. I went through the court-house today and I was surprised at the ex-cellent shape things are in. In the cierk's office, where I had occasion to look over some papers, I saw a system which is the most perfect I have ever seen. Any paper in that office can be found in a minute by any one who wants it. The system is certainly a omce can be touch who wants it. The system is certainly a marvelous one, and that clerk is well up in his work."

The Albany Herald, answering some of the critics of the proposed Soldiers' Home, says "The home is not looked upon as wholly a charitable institution." There are none of Georgia's old soldiers who have not beet amply provided for. The Soldiers' Home is an institution intended for such veterans who have no homes of their own, in lieu of the pensions they receive—a place where they can spend in comfort their reclining years. There is many a veteran soldier in Georgia who, while by no means in destitute circum stances, will be glad to see the doors of the home thrown open, where he may be giver the care and attention necessary in latter years, and they will soon see it done."

Hon. James H. Blount for postmaster general The Times-Recorder says:

"For twenty years the congressman from the sixth district of Georgia has been building up a record for democracy that is equalled by few men in the nation in value to the country; and his service on the postoffice an appropriation committees has given Colone James H. Blount a familiarity with the important questions of the postal service that its him in an eminent degree to fill the place of postmaster general. The Times-Recorded counts if there is a man in the party whose qualifications are equal to those of this gentleman for that position."

The Athens Banner has this to say of the The Athens Banner has this to any normal school:

"The citizens of Athens want the norma school firmly established here at Rock college. And they have taken steps towards more forcibly presenting the arguments if its favor to the legislature. We believe that when the Georgia legislature hears all the arguments in favor of the establishment and maintenance of the whool, the bill introduced by Mr. Fleming, of Richmond, to that effect will pass and become a law."

Banner:
"Every old soldier in Georgia should write a letter to his representative urging the ac ceptance and maintenance of the Confederate Home. If it be shown in this manner what the actual truth of the matter is, viz: that the old veterans of Georgia want the home ac cepted, the legislature will not refuse their request."

The Hogansville Hustler remarks that in the re-election of Judge Harris and Solicitor General Atkinson, of the Coweta circuit, the legislature voiced a popular sentiment.

ECHOES FROM THE PEOPLE

On the Right Line. Atlants, Ga., December 2.—Editor Contuition: I have been noticing for some the subject of "Cot work at the subject of "Cot with the subject of the subject o

The dealing in cotton futures in the south is one of the greatest evils we have to con-tend with. I am satisfied that there are mil-ilons of dollars every year that go out of this state to Wall street from losses in dealing is cotton futures.

It is a fascination that has taken b our people that can only be arrested by the passage of what is known as the "Hatth Bill."

I am in the mercantile business been for thirty-three years. I have n had a failure on me that did not result, had a failure on me that did not result, directly or indirectly, from dealing in cottos, futures. I have watched these things for many years and whenever a failure occurs in the country you will find that nineteen time out of twenty the cause of it is the dealing in futures. A great many of our largest merchants are dealing in cotton futures, and the habit increases every year.

Now to show you to what extent this has been carried on I will state that our actual receipts for November were one million bales, and the cotton futures sold in the city of New York alone were eight million one hundred dred thousand bales, which shows that there were one million of actual cotton and seven million sold on paper. Now if you want any better evidence to prove that it is case of speculation or gambling, you have only to look at these figures. Let the Hatch bill pass; let us see if this evil cannot be arrested; if it should no to be a good thing they could repeal it in one year. Wall street is flooding the country year. Wall street is flooding the country with circulars; men are working day and night trying to defeat the Hatch bill. You night trying to defeat the Hatch bill. Ion are on the right side of this question; your articles are for the benefit of the merchants farmers and the whole people. Speculation is wrong; so continue with your work and eventually you will succeed, if not at onea. Yours very truly, OLD MERCHANT.

A Plea for Progress.

A Plea for Progress.

Editor Constitution—Now that the excitement incident to a presidential election has subsided and the outlook for more prosperous times is brightening, it is the imperative duty of every clitican of Atlanta to consider what course must be pursued in order to advance the material prosperity of Atlanta and this section. While there is no necessity for a single individual to intermit an effort to develop any part of the Gate City, there is a great duty to perform to advance the general interests of the entire city. Let the keynes be: "All for Atlanta and for all Atlants." The work of locating and developing large manufacturing establishments, employing large bodies of men and women, with heavy capital, should be continued. So should the effort to induce the laboring classes to over their own homes. This gives permanence to the growth of a community and stability and contentment to its citizens. But the importance of small industries ought not it be overlooked. A large number of small industries ought not it be overlooked. A large number of small industries ought not to be overlooked. A large number of small industries ought not to be overlooked. A large number of small industries ought not to be overlooked. A large number of small industries ought not to be overlooked. A large number of small industries ought not to the produces otherwise wasted.

A look at the market any day in our city will convince the most skeptical that much of the produces is brought in such condition as to depress its marketable value, and, hence, the produces when the city and merchants. The extablishment of small industries that would utilize such produces the roducer and the sity. There are scores unemployed that in see a case could be earning something, and in this way, adding to the volume of general property.

Utilising material now unutilised and girling employment to the unemployed will help in a large degree to bridge over "hard fines and bring about a better state of affairs.

One of the impediments in the way of the deorge W. Harrison and others, representative men who would give character and impetus to it.

Atlanta has led in these enterprises, but she must make more strenuous efforts to surpass all her past records in this direction. She owes it to herself and those who patrosize her perchants. The city council should second this effort by enacting such legislation as will foster instead of destroying their industries. Do not erush them out by heavy taxation, Encourage them in every legislation of the following them in every legislation, of the following them in every legislation of the two too, for it is to their interest to do so.

Let us note how a comparatively small industry in the beginning has grown into unamount proportions, that of granite. The cessus of 1880 shows that Georgis stood in the twelfth rank as a granite producing state, receiving only $64,480 for granite. The cessus gives her the sixth place, one above New Hampshire, the Granite State, and a total of $752,481 received for that product. DeKalb county received of this sum $605,078. While in this connection I wish to emphasize the importance of sustaining our own industries. According to the census Rade Island ranked Georgia, being the fifth state. A contract was awarded here to a party to erect a mausoleum of Rhode Island granite for $29,000. A contract made by another party for a mausoleum is being executed by Atlanta artisans of Georgia granite for $4,000, and is pronounced far superior to that from Rhode Island. The point is Atlanta should not help other states outrank her in prosperity.

Another suggestion. The farmers are compared to the state outrank her in prosperity.

Atlanta artisans of Georgia granite for $4.000 and is pronounced far superior to that fon Rhode Island. The point is Atlanta should not help other states outrank her in properly.

Another suggestion. The farmers are complaining, and justly, too, of low prices for their products. The changed condition of agriculture and the labor system, has resulted in making the cost of production above the market price. The necessity for cheapeness the cost of production is patent, and farmers are endeavoring to solve that problem.

The demands of the age require the rank transportation of produce, and double to bulk of the past. The building and maintenance of improved highways will form at item in reducing the cost of getting the produce to market. In the culture of these produces, however, will the greatest reduction of cost be necessary. Improved tillage by means of improved agricultural implements of the soil, and diversified products will have solve the problem.

Attention is now directed to the utilization of steam power in the tillage of the land, and it may be that Atlanta will lead the world in the manufacture of steam engines for farmwork. There are many crops that could be grown in this region successfully, for which we depend on other sections.

Let Atlantians get together and act together. Let her commercial club at once put committees to work to outline measures for stead growth and improvement, the development of commerce and the establishment of small is dustries.

The country has, with tremendous emphasis, demanded a reduction of the tariff to a revenue basis. The demand should be compiled with without unnecessary delay. Until congress takes definite action on the tariff there will necessarily be considerable uncertainty in every branch of business. Manufacturers, merchants, importers, shippers and everybody who is engaged in production or traffic should know at the earliest possible moment what they have to expect, so that they can soverathemselves accordingly.

He said he release as simply a business proposition in the had come to the legislature with no pointed views on this question, still he saw that it was a matter of proper legislation and he for one was not willing to shift the responsibility of the hour upon the shoulders of any one else. Even though his people were divided on the issue he would take his stand and there he would stay. Hall is a good speaker and is very entertaining when he is on the floor of the house.

This Man is Honest.

Harrison of Quitman, the recognized leader of the opposition to the bill in the house, spoke next and made a very earnest and sober appeal to the members to vote as their consciences and constituents dictated. He said the question of doing something for the good of the old soldiers did not come up for settlement in this issue. He was as good a friend to the confederate soldier as any man in the hall, and he believed every member in sincerity acknowledge it.

It was clear that Mr. Harrison was moved with nought but honest thoughts and the sincere desire to do what was best in the matter. He was opposed to the acceptance of the home because he thought it was not the proper way to proceed in the work of giving comforts to the old soldiers. Fairminded as the gentleman from Quitman always is, he made one of the clearest and fairest speeches that were heard yesterday in the house.

He said he was not a soldier himself but was me son of a confederate soldier whose services in the Alabama army had always been held up to him as a stimulus in learning the lesson of southern citizenship. He could not vote against the out so long as the memory of that service confronted him. It was a pretty speech and one that was well directed.

Boifeinitet's Pretty Dream.

Perhaps the most eloquent tribute to the confederate veterans that was paid on the floor of the house was the speech of Boifeillet, of Bibb. This was a speech that was pretty, indeed. Mr. Boifeillet's picture portrayed to him in a dream the night before was a perfect gem of oratory. He told it well, and the people in the galleries applauded to the echo when the speaker had finished. It was surely a very eloquent speech and the diction if written out on paper would make a perfect poem.

Sears, of Webster, was another to oppose the bill as he had done before when it was up for discussion in the committee of the whole house. Mr. Sears is a good reasoner and went on to show that the bill was not a feasible means to place a common living in reach of the old soldiers. His position on the bill is already known to the general public. His arguments yesterday were naturally a repetition of what he had said several days before.

days before.

This finished up the debate and the motion was made by Davis, of Heard, that the committee rise and report progress and report the bill back unfavorably. This could not be done until the amendments pending had been disposed of, and so the amendments were taken up.

The first amendment taken up was that of Guerrard, of Chatham, requiring that the amount appropriated annually shall never go above $15,000 as asked for in the original bill. This was adopted without opposition.

Then came the amendment by Hill, of Merlwether, to have the bill submitted to the people of the state at the next January county election.

It was adopted. Vote seventy-five to soventy-one.

The next was an amendment that the

The next was an amendment that the home shall not ever conflict with the right of other soldiers at in the home and not desiring to be placed there, to draw pensions. It was adopted.

Tatum, of Dade, further amended by requiring that whenever there sees to be no further need for the home the governor shall order it sold and put the proceeds into the state treasury.

Short, of Marion, wanted to amend by allowing indignant and infirm fathers of veterans of the confederacy to enjoy the benefits of the home, but it was defeated. Here Flaming moved that the committee of the whole rise, report progress and favor the passage of the bill by subsitute, as amended.

Render, of Meriwether, wanted to lore the vote then and there and so did Short, of Marion.

Fleming, of Richmond, made a spirited reply declaring that it did seem that there were certain men walking about in the house like executioners trying to slaughter the Soldiers' Home bill. He couldn't fathom the motives behind them. The attendance in the house was small and it was cold blooded and palpably wrong to the people of Georgia to force a vote on so important a measure at this time.

Speaker Atkinson ruled the whole discussion out of order.

Sears, of Webster, moved to postpone the further consideration of the home bill indefinitely but withdrew it.

Harrison, of Quitman, arose and said, "I always try to be fair, and I think it a palpable unfairness to take any such course as force a vote on this bill. I am opposed to it, but those who favor it should have that fairness, so important a consideration deserves.

It is considered a great victory for the friends of the bill that they have succeeded in having it reported favorably back to the house from the committee of the whole.

There is no further doubt about it—the home is going to be accepted.

To Abolish the Departme Mr. Steele, of Cherokee, raised the wind in the house yesterday when he introduced a bill to totally abolish the department of agriculture in the state of Georgia. He says "his people" want it abolished and that's why he has introduced the bill. He says the department is a farce as it is. Brother man and the Teachers.

Brother tiam and the Teachers.

Ham is a hummer and when he came to the legislature he threw his whole soul into the work of improving the educational affairs of the state. His fight for the teachers to be paid quarterly has been waged unremittingly, and it seems that success is to crown his efforts. Having gotten through last week his bill to provide the funds with which to pay them, and gotten it into the senate, he introduced on yesterday a bill to provide the method of disbursing the funds so that the teachers may receive their salaries when due.

The bill was referred to the committee on education, which took it up at their meeting yesterday afternoon, and at last night's session Hani, as chairman, of the committee, reported the bill with the recommendation that the same do pass.

This is moving things with a rush. It is rarely that a bill is introduced, read the first time, considered by a committee, and reported back to the house ready for a second reading, all it one day.

The bill will be read the second time this morning. All of which emphasizes the remark that Ham is a hummer.

List Night's Section.

Last Night's Session

Just before the house adjourned at noon yesterday, Mr. Fleming recited the fact that there was a vast deal of work on the clerk's desk, and the session was drawing to a close. He moved that a night session be held, and it was carried.

it was carried.

Consequently, the gas was turned on in the hall last night, and the first night sitting of the session occurred.

Pike, of Jackson, got in a bill to incorporate Slatham, a town in Jackson county.

In the senate.

In the Senate.

Once having broken the ice, the senatorial orators evine a disposition to continue indulging their taste for disputation. Quite a lively little debate was had yesterday on the resolution to give the governor a stenographer at a salary of $1,200 a year.

Edwards, of Humphries, attacked the proposition while Jenkins and Hatcher defended it.

An unfavorable committee report gave it a black eye to begin with, but there remained a strong disposition in its favor. To that report Mr. Jenkins moved to disagree, and upon the issue thus constituted labored hard, as did his ally, Mr. Hatcher, to convince the senate of the propriety of lightening the burdens of the executive.

The resolution was attacked on the ground that it was unconstitutional. In answer to this point, it was urged that a cook and other servants for the executive mansion were paid by the state, and the construction of the law could reasonably be extended so as to include the pay of a stenographer. This clerk was needed to attend to duties of an unofficial nature, such as pressed upon the executive to such a degree as to infringe on time needed for strictly official business. A great number of letters, for instance, were constantly reaching him from persons who wished to obtain information in regard to the resources of the state. These ought to be answered; it was necessary that they should be, in order that the recipient might not appear grossly discourteous. It was true, as suggested by the gentlemen on the other side, that such letters might be turned over to the agricultural department; but they ought to be answered by the official to whom they were addressed. Otherwise, it would look unhandsome. If it was the policy of the state to pay the servants at the mansion, there surely existed the inherent power under the constitution to pay a stenographer.

If the clerical assistance asked for were not granted it would be bad eronomy in the poncy of the state to pay the servants at the mansion, there surely existed the inherent power under the constitution to pay a stenographer.

If the clerical assistance asked for were not granted it would be bad economy in the long run. The executive department was already overrun with business. Its duties were stendily increasing, and without such relief as that to be procured under the resolution at a cost of $1,200 a year, a pension bureau would become imperative at a vastly greater expense. It was not certain how long pension payments would continue in Georgia, but the system had been established and there was every reason to believe that it would not be discontinued for a long term of years. Such business had much better be left under the supervision of the governor, but he must have time to attend to it. The slender pay of that official—a paltry $3,000 per annum—was a disgrace to the state, and yet, notwithstanding the heavy burdens of his ever-increasing duties, it was charged that in endeavoring to relieve him to some extent of the overstrain of work devolving upon him, an effort was being made to dodge the constitution for the purpose of increasing his salary. In support of the committee the champions of its report insisted that while the governor of Georgia was one of the best in the union and deserved the confidence of the people which he enjoyed so fully, and while it was highly desirable to relieve him of overwork, it was of even greater importance not to impose upon the constitution and protect him at the expense of it. Feeling kindly toward the constitution, they feel kindly also toward the organic law. The employment by the state of the servants at the executive mansion, it was held, was not in violation of the constitution. Their pay was properly included in the general appropriation bill; why did not the proposed stenographer's salary appear there? There, if anywhere, it would be in place.

real appropriation bill; why did not the proposed stenographer's salary appear there? There, if anywhere, it would be in place. Under the code that bill must include all general expenses of the state government.

Mr. Hatcher—Is it not true that the bill providing for the payment of servants at the mansion in the beginning set apart a special appropriation for the purpose, which was later included in the general bill? Didn's it start that way? limited by law to $6,000. It was probably so it started wrong. If this stenographer is to do unofficial work, for the governor, then his employment by the state would be a mere gratuity to the governor.

Mr. Jenkins called attention to the stenographers allowed judges of the superior court as a parallel case.

Mr. Humphries said that did not make it constitutional. The expenses of the clerical department in the executive office were limited by alw to $6,000. It was probably true that the governor did not have time to can department in the executive office were limited by alw to $6,000. It was probably true that the governor did not have time to answer all his unofficial letters but if a man must be employed by the state to look after his private clerical work, why not have the state hire an overseer to run the governor's farm in Hancock county, where, no doubt, his interest suffered from his absence. The constitution declared that the general assembly should have the right to grant a gratuity to no person whatsoever. For several sections of the constitution stood in the way of the proposed enactment.

The previous question was called and the resolution lost, the senate, on an aye and nay vote, sustaining the committee 12 to 27.

The renewed struggle on the "doctor bill," which was thought to be imminent, was averted. Mr. Pinson moved that the bill be reconsidered, but his motion went to the table, the friends of the measure thus proving their continued strength. It has been predicted that there will be a final effort to defeat its passage when it comes before the house.

The Gober Investigation

The Gober Investigation committee will soon be busy with the work of reviewing testimony and making out their report. The stenographers are now at work getting the testimony in shape, and as soon as this is done the committee will lose no time in hastening before the house with a report reviewing the whole case as it was laid down before them by the evidence on both sides. The Immigration Committee.

The Immigration Committee.

The committee on immigration has had some important measures before it for the past two or three days.

The bill by Mr. Fleming, of Richmond to establish a bureau of immigration has been up fo consideration.

It is pleasing to see the interest the Northern Society is taking in this bill and the hope the members of the same manifest for its passage. They have been before the committee at each meeting urging the passage of the bill, and will do all in their power to make such a law fulfill a great purpose if it should pass. These men of the Northern Society say to the committee that they go before it with no ax to grind; that they are seeking no office and that they are seeking no office and that they are simply asking for the good of the state to be of service in bringing about a completer drift of northern capital and population into the south, and Georgia especially.

Preparing for Work.

Preparing for Work. Preparing for Work.

The usual indications of restiveness in in view of the approaching end of the session and the limited time left for the transaction of business took shape yesterday in a resolution from Wilson, of the thirteenth, changing the hour for the assembling of the senate from 10 o'clock to 9 o'clock a. m. A vote will be taken this morning.

The proposition to continue the payment of confederate veterans' pensions to their vidows in the event of their death failed to meet with endorsement in the committee room and the author of the bill withdrew it.

To Preserve the Capitol.

It is alleged that the captol building has been subjected to a good deal of expensive wear and tear during the current year by reason of the frequent meetings held in it by societies of various kinds in no way identified with the administration of public affairs. It isproposed to put a stop to this practice and the house bill to that end, limiting the use of the building to the state departments and political meetings received the sanction of the senate. In the preamble to this bill as it came from the house, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who occupied the building for three weeks, the Stationary Engineers and the Scotch-Irish society, each of which had it for some time, appeared to be especially charged with the damage. Senator Wooten for that reason moved to strike out the preamble and his amendment was carried.

The senate concurred in the amendment offered by the house to the joint resolution endorsing the Hatch bill and calling upon congress to endorse that or some other measure to put an end to gambling in the future.

One of the most important bills that has To Preserve the Capitol.

One of the most important bills that has One of the most important bills that has been introduced this session was yesterday offered by Mr. Daley. It provides that a husband shall be recognized as the legally qualified agent of his wife in the management of her separate estate when entrusted to him, and also when she furnishes money to be used by him in any business, no matter in whose name it may be conducted. In such cases, her estate shall be held liable for debts contracted by him as her agent. But, should the wife lend the husband money for his own use in business, and such loan be recorded in the clerk's office and the public nut on potice, then the husband shall be recorded in the clerk's omce and the public put on notice, then the husband shall not be considered his wife's agent, and her estate shall not be liable.

The introducer of this bill states that it is designed to cut off an easy way to fraud, which, he thinks, under the present system, is not infrequently taken advantage of.

Senate Routine.

The committee which lately visited the academy for the blind reported in favor of a four-thousand-dollar appropriation for a new roof for the main building, to supply fire escapes and for other needful repairs of a minor nature. The management of the institution received the approbation of the committee. Seventy-one white and nineteen colored inmates appeared to be well cared for, familiar with their studies and happy.

The bill requiring railroads to post all country road crossings was killed by the adoption of the adverse committee report thereon. Senate Routine. thereon.

A bill was passed extending the jurisdiction of police courts in cities of 20,000 inhabitiants to abate nuisances.

CAPTAIN GEORGE B. FORBES Is Running for the Clerkship for All That the Office Is Worth

"I find a mistaken rumor afloat," said Captain George B. Forbes, last night, "that there is an agreement by which I am to have a place with Judge Tanner if he should have a place with Judge Tanner II ne snould be elected.

"This is an entire mistake. I am running on the clean cut issue for the superior court clerkship. To show how definite it is that I have no understanding with Judge Tanner, I will state that should he be elect-ed, even were he to offer me a place, I would decline it. I want the clerkship or nothing, and I am now perfectly satisfied that I will be elected to the clerkship."

Exchange.

NEW YORK, December 2.—Money loaned at 4@5 per cent lowest and closing 4 per cent. Exchange closed steady—posted rates, 486 1-2@489; actual rates, 486 1-2 for sixty days, and 487 1-4@488 for demand.

Governments closed steady.

Dealings on the stock exchange this morning were comparatively light and contined to the Gould stocks, Sugar Trust, Reading and Northern Pacific preferred. At the opening there was some pressure to sell the Gould stocks on the announcement of the death of Mr. Gould, but the selling soon died, out, and before the first call there was a substantial recovery. Missouri Pacific was the only stock of the Gould group that showed any sign of weakness. It rapidly fell under considerable selling in the opening dealings 15-8 per cent, but in the first fifteen minutes it railied 1 per cent. The other Gould stocks moved but little. Subsequently when it became known that all the stock with which the sage financier had been dentified had been trusteed, they became strong and advanced, in some cases, over last night's prices by noon. Western Union was especially strong, showing a gain of 1 per cent at noon from the lowest point. The announcement that $1,500,000 of gold had been engaged for shipment to Europe on Saturday caused an interval of weakness after the first call, but at noon the whole list was, as a rule, higher than yesterday's closing. Sales for the morning amounted to 148,748 shares.

The stock market was decidedly more active after midday, while prices were strong. One of the factors of strength was the developments at the Brussels conference today foreshadowing a repeal of our silver purchase law. Even Missouri Pacific and Western Union railied sharply from their early decide. In Burlington, Louisville and Nashville, Atchison and the other lately demoralized stocks, there were ample signs of covering. Sugar Trust was about the only weak stock, closing 7-8 per cent lower, under some unloading. In the last hour a strenuous effort was made shown in the performance of public duty.

For Tax Receivey.

I respectfully announce myself as a candidate for the office of tax receiver for Fulton county, subject to the action of the democratic executive committee. If elected Major John F. Edwards, secretary Confederate Veterans' Association, will be associated with me.

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of tax receiver of Fulton county assisted by John L. Gatins, subject to the primary December 7th.

T. M. ARMISTEAD. nov 20 til dec 7

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY: I nereby announce myself a candidate for coroner of Fulton county, subject, of course, to the democratic nomination:

To the Voters of Fulton County: I respectfully announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the office of coroner, subject to the action of the county executive committee, and solicit your votes and influence. To my great misfortune I have been sick several months, but for the past month I have performed all the duties of the office and my health is constantly improving. Yours truly, I respectfully announce myself as a candidate for coroner for Fulton county, subject to the action of the democratic party.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of coroner of sulton county, subject to the democratic nomination, if one is held I am a confederate soldier and lost my right leg in battle, besides being wounded three times.

For Commissioners. I hereby announce myself as a candidate for county commissioner, subject to democratic primary held December 7th.

J. M. LIDDELL,

To the Voters of Fulton County. I was elected as one of your county comstoners by the grand jury. I accepted the office and was to have taken my seat at the next January meeting. Afterwards the legisla-ture, by a new law, changed the system to my present election is legal and valid, and that I can claim the office under it. But I think that election by the people the better system, and I shall for the sake of harmony, offer my self for re-election. I feel as if there was just reason why I should be repudiated, and I make my appeal to the ballot box.

As is known to many of you, my election by the grand jury was without any solicitation affairs.

I believe that every public road in the county should be put in first-class order and kept so, and new roads and streets opened only where in suburban or other localities the growth of improvements make it a matter of public utility or public benefit.

I am not a candidate for any locality or section, but the whole county, recognizing no dividing line; nor will I combine with another candidate for this or other office, or give any pledge to any one.

I shall favor the rebuilding or remodeling of the court house on the present site, and adjacent lot lately purchased; will favor the building of a new jail on a new lot, and will give my views on any general question to any voter, who, in good faith, may ask for the same.

RAILROAD MEN ENDORSE MORROW.

His Former Fellow Workmen Are Enthusi-

The following letter has been issued by prominent employes of the Georgia railroad to their fellow railroad men:
Atlanta, Ga., December 2, 1892.—To the Railroad Men and Friends of Railroad Men: We, the majority of the Georgia railroad em ployes, respectfully request the hearty sup port of all our railroad friends, and especially o all yard men, to join us in the support of Captain James W. Morrow for sheriff in the coming primary. We feel that he is the man for that position and believe in his ability and capacity to serve the public. We would not ask this favor of ratirond men and their friends if we did not appreciate highly his past record of twenty years as a railroad man and employe and feel proud of his past career. He is a proven friend to the work-ing man and in the hour of need has favored them by promoting their interests. In this matter the above sets forth our feelings to him as his friendship has been to us in the past, therefore your influence in this matter is earnestly solicited by us. "GEORGIA RAILROAD EMPLOYES."

THE THEATERS.

"Mr. Potter, of Texas," was presented a DeGive's last night to a large and well pleased audience. The play was up to the expectations of all who were out, and many bad weather did not interfere much with the size of the audience which was composed of the best people of the city. The play is a fair and delightful reproduction of the book which was so extensively read, and on the boards the plot is pleasantly unfolded. The first three acts are enter ainling, but the fourth was particularly interesting. The east throughout is good, and each one sustains his part most excellently. Henry Weaver, as the Hon. Mr. Potter, was just what the audience wanted to see, while Hugh Gibson's Baron Lincoln was good. Miss Stella Boniface as Lady Sarah Annerly was good. as was Miss Bushy who gave Ida Potter. The piece will be reproduced again tonight and at matinee this afternoon.

At the Edgewood.

William J. Fleming's and Arnold Kiralty's spectacular, "Around the World in 80 Days" was well received at the Edgewood Avenue theater last evening. There was an audience of good proportions present and the performance was a most enjoyable one. Since this plays presentation here last season many im-provements have been added, and it is now being played in altogether a meritorious manpeing played in altogether a meritorious manner. Mr. Fleming, as the American, was original, clever and attractive in his work. Miss Rees, as Auoda, was warmly received. Her acting is of a superior order and her work is highly commendable. Mr. Hazelrigg, as Phineas Fogg, is all the part calls for Kiralfy's ballet added greatly to the performance, and his work personally is appreciated. Senorita Varsani, the premiere danseuse, is a great "find."

At Edgewood Monday and Tuesday.

McCabe & Young's genuine colored minstrels played to a crowded house at the Avenue theater last night. To say that they made a hit would but feebly express the impression hit would but feelly express the impression made upon the audience by the various features of the programme, all of which received liberal applause both from the parquet and the gallery. The songs are fetching, and the jokes are all good and most of them new. Little Prince McCabe, son of D. W. McCabe, is a remarkably good singer, an agile dancer and a clever baton twirler. George Jackson is an excellent acrobat, comedian and singer, and has a month that almost equals Kersand's. Billy Wisdom and Walter Dixon are shining lights in ministrelay, and Frank Broom treated the audience to some phenomenal treated the audience to some phenomenal tumbling and contortions. Generally speaking the show is one of the best minstrel en tainments we have ever witnessed.—N Orleans Times-Democrat, Nevember 12th. For the above engagement the prices on first floor will be 50 and 75 cents, according to location.

GREAT ANXIETY

Felt in Atlanta by Members of the Three Organizations

CONFERRING WITH MR, WADLEY.

They Know Absolutely Nothing of the Status of the Conference, and Feel Deeply Anxious for a Termination.

The existing differences between the Central railroad and certain of its employes, which have been threatening to culminat strike of the telegraphers, engineers in a strike of the telegraphers, engineers and firemen of that road, are still in an unsettled condition. Yesterday, when it was expected that something definite would result from the continued presence in Savannah of the committees of the three organizations, brought no new developments. From an outside view it appeared no nearer solution than it did two days before Of solution than it did two days before. Of course, outsiders cannot know what is being lone by the powers that be.

A great deal of interest, and among a certain class anxiety even, has been felt in the matter by Atlanta people. In the Central railroad yard, men who would be immediately affected by the strike, should one occur, have been watching the negotiations or attempt at negotiations which have been made at Savannah this week. Especially did the men belonging to the labor organizations affected by these negotiations, who were looking almost any minute for the order to quit work to come from the leaders in the labor organizations, feel anxious for the termination of the conference in Savannah. The telegraphers did not know but that each message would be their last. When the engineers and fire-men started out on their runs they expected to receive a message to quit work before the journey was completed. Officials, too, at this end of the line felt anxious, as they would feel the complications resulting from a strike as general as

None of the railroad employes knew the status of the fight, or what was being done in Savannah. A member of the Brother-hood of Locomotive Engineers said that absolutely nothing was known by the engineers of the progress of the conference with Superintendent Wadley at the Forest City.

"The committee," said he, "went to Savannah empowered to act, and their move ments are known only to themselves. Not a single member of the brotherhood, outside of the committee know what has been done. The brotherhood gets all its news from the papers."

Uncertainty therefore reigns, and the end the anxiety would be welcomed.

While a great deal has been said about the strike, little has been said about the merits of it. The present difference originated in the order of telegraphers. The telegraph operators employed on the road

merts of it. The present interestic originated in the order of telegraphers. The telegraph operators employed on the road demanded an increase in salary. There are about three hundred operators employed by the Central system, and the net increase in salary asked for would amount to about $1,500 monthly.

"The average salary paid to operators on the Central," said one of them yesterday, speaking of the matter, "is only $45 per month. The pay is altogether disproportionate to the work the operators have to do. The operators employed here in the Atlanta offices get $50 a month as they have a large amount of telegraphing to do. Atlanta offices get $50 a month as they have a large amount of telegraphing to do. But take the case of the operators employed at such places as Hampton, Forsyth or Jonesboro, they only get $50, and have to do the work of railroad agent and all the Western Union telegraphing in addition to the railroad telegraphing. All we ask is an increase of about $5 a month. We think, of course, that the demand is just." But think what they may, the operators nor engineers knew yesterday where the trouble would end, and they were not enjoying the anxiety.

DENIES THE STATEMENT.

Chairmrn Moore Talks Emphatically About What Superintendent Wadley Says. Savannah, Ga., December 2 .- (Special.)-Savannah, Ga., December 2.—(operat.)
Chairman Moore, of the Central railroad telegraphers committee, defices the statement made by General Superintendent Wadley in a statement sent by him to various newspapers. Mr. Moore said today that when found at the meeting of the telegraphers committee and Superintendent Wadley. some time ago, that there was to be troubl between the Central and the telegraphers, and that the road claimed that the wages it was paying was sufficient compensation for the services required, that he wrote to nembers of the order for information, and that their letters in his hands disprove Superintendent Wadley's statements. Men working from 5 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night, doing the work of a telegrapher, station agent and porter, receive but from $35 to $45 a month, in some instances, while their stations are doing business of from $25,000 to $50,000 a year There have also been a number of cuts of wages, reductions of from ten to twenty dollars a month. The operators are also no onid for over time. The pay on the Central is less than on the Savannah, Florida and

Yesterday morning after a brief illness her pure spirit departed from its earthly She was surrounded by many sorowing relatives who watched at her bedside with anxious hearts. The skill of the best physicians and the

The skill of the best physicians and the care of the most efficient nurses were without avail to prolong her life, and were only fruitful in making her last hours painless. It was a pathetic scene to witness the going out of such a life—so pure and so refined, and yet it was beautiful at the same time to observe with spiritual eyes her transformation into one of heaven's own bright angels.

Her life was gentle and lovable, and no one knew her but to surrender their hearts and to speak in the highest terms of her lovable nature.

It was fit indeed that a spirit so gentle should be housed in such a beautiful tabernacle. She was lovely and refined in person, and was one of those queenly women who command the respect and the admiration of all who meet them only as an earnest of that stronger feeling which will come in time when they learn to know them better.

The girlhood of Mrs. Hartridge was spent in time when they learn to know them better.

The girlhood of Mrs. Hartridge was spent in Atlanta where she was known and loved among her friends as Ida May Gartrell. She was one of the youngest daughters of the late General L. J. Gartrell, and was also a sister to Mrs. Dr. Baird, Mrs. B. M. Blount and Mrs. Percy Magnus.

Six years ago she was wedded to Mr. Gazaway Hartridge, a brilliant young journalist of Savannah, and leaving the Gate City she went with her husband to live among the stately magnolias.

Many friends were there awaiting her as the wife of one of Savannah's favority young squires, but many more were added as the result of her gentle manners and her sweet and heautiful disposition.

Only a few weeks before her death she lost her only child, a lovely girl of five summers, and now after a brief separation they are both united again in a higher and brighter reunion.

The whole city is saddened by the death

Death of Mrs. Newell at Marietta.

Marietta, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)—The community was shocked today by the sad announcement of the death of Mrs. George F. Newell. It seemed to cast a gloom over the whole of Marietta and to impart an aspect of sorrow to nearly every countenance. No lady in Marietta was more widely beloved than Mrs. Newell, and with equal truth it may be said that no one ever deserved the affection of others more richly. The esteem in which she was held was the voluntary tribute which was paid to her kindness of heart by the rich and poor alike, and the expression of sorrow which proceeded from nearly every heart in Marietta appeared to vie with one another in their eulogy upon her life and character.

Years ago.

The climate of the south was congenial to the latter's health, and pleased with the little city at the foot of the Kennesaw, he decided to make it his home.

His health inproved with his change of residence and his career as a business man was marked from the very beginning.

The health of Mrs. Newell began to fail several months ago. Her disease was pulmonary, and several weeks ago it became apparent that the end was near. She was resigned to her lot, however, and was supported throughout her illness by a beautifut rust in the efficacy of her Christian faith. She was distinguished for many beautiful graces, but none of them were more characteristic than her strong and abiding Christianity. She lived as she believed and her life was but the outward expression of her inner thoughts and feelings, all of which were for the good of others, and which pointed to the highest good of all—the future happiness of the human soul.

She leaves only one child, a little boy, to heave with her human soul.

share with her husband the grief which has entered the home circle.

The deepest sympathy of the whole community goes out to the afflicted hearts in their sore bereavement.

Mrs. Newell was born in Lock Haven, Penn. on December 2, 1859. She was married on Christmas day in the state of Colorado, and her death, which occurred this morning, was on the thirty-third anniversary of her birth.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

CITY NOTES.

The city hall building is having a coal house of large dimensions built under it. Workmen are now excavating in front of the building, and in the meantime the sidewalk is badly

The work on Peachtree is moving on rapidly, very much to the gratification of those frequent that street.

The big fire bell will be lifted to its perch in the new fire engine building next week, and then the old familiar ring will be heard

Henry Thomas, a negro boy, whose home is on Western Railroad street, was badly hurt yesterday afternoon by falling from a high embankment near the old exposition grounds. He, with a lot of hands, was digging some rain trenches along the bank of the cut when the embankment gave way, and the entire crowd was thrown a distance of some twenty feet. Thomas had his left arm broken and was pretty badly bruised up otherwise.

Ike Foreman, a train hand on the Georgia acific road, had his right foot broken yesterday afternoon while coupling cars in the yard. He was taken to his home on Alexander street, where the surgeon of the road rendered the necessary attenion.

Next Wednesday evening the First Baptist church will rent its pews for the year. The church pews are among the most popular in the city and the meeting will be largely at-tended.

How a Watch Saved an Atlanta Man's

IT WAS STRUCK IN A WRECK

By a Sharp Instrument That Would Produce Death.

Yesterday morning Mr. C. W. Thrasn, who was so seriously injured in the wreck on the Chattahoochee river railroad last spring, and who so narrowly escaped death, brought to The Constitution office a very remarkable curiosity. It was nothing less than a handsome double case gold watch, which had saved his life. The watch was badly smashed and battered, but to Mr. Yesterday morning Mr. C. W. Thrash Thrash it is no doubt one of the prettiest

On the day of the wreck Mr. Thrash was wearing the watch in his pocket. When the crash of the wreck came some sharp pointed instrument struck the watch with pointed instrument struck the watch with great force, producing a painful wound to Mr. Thrash and so denting both cases of the watch as to jam the movements together. If the watch had not been struck, the sharp instrument, whatever it was, would no doubt have pierced Mr. Thrash's body and produced instant death. Mr. Thrash's physician states that nothing but the watch saved the young man's life.

As it was, Mr. Thrash was badly injured, but he has about recovered and highly values the watch for having saved his life.

The watch was purchased from Blue, the people's jeweler, 73 Whitehall street, but this is no advertisement of Blue. The watch can be seen at Blue's, and this story can be verified by writing to C. W. Thrash, Clara postoffice.

The inauguration of President Cleveland on the 4th of March next will be one of the GRANDEST EVENTS in the history of America. It will be the beginning of a new era of prosperity such as this country has never seen, especially in the south and west.

Thousands of people from all parts of the United States will be there, and every good Democrat and lover of free government in the south, that can possibly do so, should go. We know there are thousands of persons in Georgia alone that would like to go, and we have a plan that will enable everyone that can lay aside $2 or $3 a week from now until March, to go, and in addition, secure the most modern and complete Encyclopaedia published In order to advertise our Encyclopaedia, and, if possible, place it in at least 1,000 homes in Georgia by Christmas, we will give every person purchasing a set of the AMERICANIZED ENCY-CLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA in half Russia binding, between now and the 25th of December, a firstclass railroad ticket from Atlanta to Washington City and return, to the inauguration of President Cleveland.

We will deliver the complete set of Encyclopaedia at once, upon payment of $5, and let subscribers pay the balance at the rate of $3 a week, fand as soon as the sum of $25 has been paid in we will give them an order for the ticket.

Remember, we furnish the Encyclopaedia at the regular price, $35.00. and give the TICKET FREE, and as the rate will be the same by all lines, we will be able to offer our patrons their choice of routes.

It will pay you to call at our office, 80 Marietta street, and investigate this great offer.

We have the largest stock of 'BAGSTER'S COM-PREHENSIVE TEACHER'S BIBLE, ' ever brought to the city, and we are almost giving them away as an advertisement. Come and see them.

Trial of John Griggs.

HE WAS RECOMMENDED TO MERCY,

And Will Probably Be Sentenced Today. Other Cases on the Docket-Is Crime Increasing in Atlanta?

John Griggs was yesterday afternoon found guilty of the murder of Ed Fambro. He was recommended, however, to the mercy of the court and the sentence of the law, instead of being death, will be that of

Judge Clark will probably sentence the man today together with several other prisoners who have been recently convicted.

The verdict of the jury was rendered yesterday afternoon at 2:20 o'clock, and read: "We, the jury, find the defendant, John Griggs, guilty of murder, but recommend him to the mercy of the court."

There was no motion for a new trial and no movement on the part of the defendant's counsel which indicated any such intention isfied with the verdict and there was a look of evident satisfaction on his face when the finding of the jury was read.

Griggs, in appearance, is not over twenty years of age and is a fair specimen of the negro in his crude undeveloped state. His color is that of charcoal and his lips are as color is that of charcoal and his lips are as thick as a good-sized watermelon rind.

He kept his eyes on the judge throughout the entire hearing and, with his lips apart and his legs thrust out in aldermanic fushion, he sat in ignorant wonder throughout the entire proceedings.

His attorneys, appointed by the court, were Messrs. J. C. Jenkins and D. R. Keith. They conducted the trial in a masterly way and their speeches before the jury were excellent pleas in behalf of their client.

After the verdict was rendered the court adjourned until this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Several Prisoners Tried.

Several Prisoners Tried. Judge Clark and Solicitor Hill have evi-Judge Clark and Solicitor Hill have evidently made up their minds to "rush things" during the present term of the court.

Not with that hasty dispatch that is usually implied in the word "hurry" but rather with that quick and rapid manner which admits at the same time of a thorough and careful examination.

Since the court assembled last Monday morning, after its long recess, over twenty-one prisoners have appeared before his honor, Judge Clark.

Several of them pleaded guilty, of course.

honor, Judge Clark.

Several of them pleaded guilty, of course, and were given that lenient consideration which the law permits when a crime is acknowledged and the county is saved the expense of a trial.

Trials before a court are never cheap and when the cost is footed up and all the bills. when the cost is footed up and all the bills that are incident thereto are paid it is found that the pile is no inconsiderable sum of money.

Many trials of grave magnitude, which have been carried over from day to day, have cost the county hundreds of dollars, to say nothing of the handsome pay which the lawyers have received for their services.

The crimes which have come within the jurisdiction of the court during the past week have almost covered the ten commandments.

Several negroes have been sent to the "pen" for burglarizing houses, while others have been given the extent of the law for larceny and other crimes.

Other Trials to Follow.

Other Trials to Follow.

While several of the prisoners have been disposed of and the jail has been relieved of quite a number of its occupants there are still about thirty prisoners who have not yet been brought into court.

Among them are Porter Stocks charged with the killing of Alph Cassin: Sarh Johnson, the negro cook, indicted for an effort to poison the ramily of Mr. Paul Romare: Walter Johnson, charged with the murder of Henry Freeland; General Delk, the young white man, who stabbed Tom Evans in the Fulton county jail, and several others.

One or two of these cases will probably be disposed of next week, while the others will, no doubt, go over until the first week in January.

Is Crime Increasing? The crowded condition of the docket at the present time suggests the very pertinent question. "Is crime increasing in Atlanta?" That question was not become question, "Is crime increasing in Atlanta?"

That question was put to Frank Myers, the clerk who stays in the criminal court.
"I think not," said he with a lot of wrinkles over his eyebrows as he tried to rake over the different terms in his mind. "You must recollect that Atlanta is getting bigger and bigger every day. The increase in the number of criminals does not, I think, represent any increase in the percentage of crime. It shows that the population of the city is steadily growing, and the number of cases which are tried before Judge Clark are really fewer than in past years, when the growth of Atlanta is taken into consideration."

Judge Marshall CI rke in Chambers.

Judge Marshall Cl rke in Chambers Judge Marshall Clarke was yesterday engaged throughout the entire day in the hearing of the case of Mrs. Mossey against C. B. Beardsley. The argument began yesterday afternoon and the case will be concluded this morning.

Jugde Richard Clark's Docket.

The holding of court for the trial of felonies by Judge Richard Clark has been interfered with by the primaries, the elections and the carnival. The present is the third week of the court, since it began, early in October. Next week Judge Clark has to hold an adjourned term at Jonesboro. After that he will resume here the next week and continue court up to Christmas, if the business requires it. Then he will resume again on the first or second Alonday in January. The case of Porter Stocks will be called the second week of said sitting. Ed Holland will not be tried until there is a final judgment in Stocks's case. This is by authority. The Fast Mail.

Lincoln J. Carter's "Fast Mail" company, appears at the opera house next Monday and Tuesday. This is the original railroad melodrama that has so many imitators on the road this season, and it is said to be one of the drama that has so many imitators on the road this season, and it is said to be one of the best scenle productions in America. A carload of scenery is carried and the manager promises faithfully that every piece will be put up in this city at each of the three performances. "The Fast Mall" is a melodrama, a play of plays which goes with a rush from a river view to a murder at Memphis until it ends with retribution on the suspension bridge in sight of Niagara Falls, where the roar of the cataract is heard and the mist is seen rising from the whirlpool into which real water is rising. As in "Silver King." a young man thinks he has committed murder. Another man for revenge commits the crime. Walter is hunted and his faithful Mary tries to protect him, flying with him. The villain pursues them, They are blown up on a steamboat, betrayed at a railroad station, decoyed to a den in Chicago, and finally escape to Niagara. The steamboat explosion is very startling. How true it is can only be answered by those who have been blown up and saved on a raft. The railroad effect, showing a station master's and telgraph office, with the arrival of a long freight train followed by the fast mail, which picks up the mail bag on the fly, is said to be the best that has ever been produced, and work of art made real.

wealthy bachelor, but was in love with a poor young man. The young man urged the beautiful girl to elope with him. Alas, "too late," she said, "the wedding day is fixed." The wealthy bachelor took out a marriage license, as a matter of precaution, and, showing it to the beautiful girl, cried: "I have you now."

The beautiful girl listened to the pleadings of the poor young man, wept bountfully. "Would that I could," she said, "but he already has the license." The poor young man hurded to the club, and stole the marriage license from the wealthy bachelor's overcoat pocket.

That Northwestern Press Association Is How in Chattanooga.

WILL REACH ATLANTA TONIGHT.

The Tennesseeans Entertained Them Mos Boyaliy and They Will Come Away Pleased with That Town.

The press association of Wisconsin and Dakota will leave Chattanooga today at noon, and will arrive in Atlanta some time during the afternoon.

The party will remain in Atlanta until omorrow afternoon, when the trip to Florida will be resumed It was expected that the journalists of the northwest would leave Chattanooga early yesterday morning and reach Atlanta by noon, but the Tennesseeaus were so good and kind to the visitors that they found it impossible to tear themselves away from that town, which is so full of interesting his-torical events to the men from the north-west. During the day they were shown the battlefields around the town, and were taken up on the mountain, from which they were shown the good old state of Georgia, to which they were coming. Of all the sights they were shown by the assiduous Tennesseeans none pleased them half so well as the glimpse they got of the Empire State of the South. The view they had of Georgia only whetted their appetite for a more thorough investi-gation of the state, and today as they ride over the Western and Atlantic railroad they will feast their eyes on the country.

The editors come from Wisconsin and Dakota, and the party is one hundred and fifty strong. There are many ladies along, and they are all enjoying the trip very much. On the way from Chattanooga the party will stop at several battle fields, and will see all that is to be seen along the line. On that account, it will be hard to tell just what time they will arrive in Atlanta.

what time they will arrive in Atlanta.

It was thought that they would be here last night, and a committee was at the union depot to receive them. The gentlemen composing the committee waited for an hour before they were informed that the party would not leave Chattanooga until today. Then they all went away disappointed.

Sunday isn't a good day to entertain visitors in Atlanta, and the visitors will now have to content themselves with listening to some of the best ministers in the union. So far, it is not known how long they will remain in Atlanta, but Mr. Parham, who came here to escort them to Florida, says they will leave the same night, and that they will make their stay longer in the city as they go back home.

The party has been pleased with what they have seen so far, and are anxious to know more of the south.

HERO ONCE, A BURGLAR NOW.

ad Fall of Scott Wimbish-From the Rank of Heroes to the Station of Burglar. Scott Wimbish, the dusky hero of a very Scott Wimbish, the dusky hero of a very remarkable incident, is in the toils again. He was arrested again last night by Detectives Bedford and Walton on a charge of burglary.

In a confession he made to the officers after his arrest, Wimbish implicated a dozen negroes in a number of robberies which the detectives have been trying hard to solve, and which Wimbish says were committed by an organized band. He gave the detectives the names of the negroes whom he declares have been burglarizing houses promiscuously throughout the city, and several other arrests will be made as soon as the men can be spotted.

The name of Scott Wimbish is familiar to the public, by reason of his connection with

The name of Scott Wimbish is familiar to the public, by reason of his connection with a somewhat remarkable incident. Seven months ago he was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of ten years for assault with intent to murder. His lawyer succeeded in getting a new trial, but before court convened Wimbish had been carried to the mines and put to work to serve out his sentence. When his case was called he was not in jail, and an investigation showed that he had been sent to the pen a month before. Of course, he was brought back and put on trial, and, strange to relate, facts were shown at the trial which completely cleared him of the crime for which he had been sentenced. Developments proved that it was a case of mistaken identity. The negro was released, and last night he made his appearance at police headquarters in the role of a burglar.

church last night.

The sanctuary was crowded to overflowing and a more delighted congregation never assembled to hear a lecturer.

From the opening sentence to the closing paragraph there was not a moment in which the lecture failed to interest. The audience came out to laugh and they were not disappointed.

They laughed until their merriment grew painful and then continued until it finally became a misery.

It was perhaps the finest lecture that Mr.

A large sum of money was realized from the entertainment.

HE WAS AN ARTIST.

One of Mr. Scarratt's Boarders Makes Off with Some Property.

with Some Property.

Mr. J. B. Scarratt, the restauranteur, is looking anxiously for one of his erstwhile boarders. This ex-boarder made quite an impression at Mr. Scarratt's boarding place on the European plan when he sppeared there last week and began boarding.

The stranger said he was from Cincinnati, and the stories he told of his adventures in life showed him up to be a here of the true dimenovel type. He said he was an artist and spent his leisure hours embellishing plank fences with patent medicine advertisements. He also sometimes daubed houses thick with chrome yellow or Paris green, according to the taste of the owner.

Two days ago the artist went away from Mr. Scarratt's hostelry and hasn't been around to his meals since. Simultaneously with the artists disappearance an overcoat and a number of other articles disappeared from Mr. Scarratt's place. The slick fellow has evidently shaken the dust of this city from his feet. Mr. Scarratt has the city detectives to look for the ex-boarder.

As Mr. Pat H. Moore, one of the deputies on Major A. G. Howard's ticket for sheriff, is not generally known to the public due to his close attention to business, we desire to say in his behalf that he has been in our employ for two years and that we have always found him thoroughly reliable, strictly attentive to business, prompt and efficient. We esteem him as a moral, upright, temperate, educated and courteous Irish gentleman and an honest democrat.
